ROCHESTER GAS & ELECTRIC
Impact of Science on Human Living Revealed in New Joint Radio Series

The friends and the critics of science are having their innings on the new radio program, "Time for Science," sponsored by the University of Rochester, the news weekly TIME, and Station WHAM.

A half-hour program, broadcast Saturday evenings at 7:30 o'clock, the radio feature has attracted hearers not only in Rochester and Western New York, but in such distant points as Bangor, Maine, and Terre Haute, Indiana. The series is under the direction of Dr. Gerald Wendt, science editor of TIME, former associate professor of chemistry at the University of Chicago and dean of the School of Chemistry and Physics at Pennsylvania State College. He has been director of scientific research for the Standad Oil Company of Indiana, director of the Battelle Memorial Institute for Industrial Research at Columbus Ohio, and, in 1918, a captain in the Army’s Chemical Warfare Service.

The program was conceived by President Alan Valentine. Theme of the series is not the mere recital of scientific progress, but the impact of science on everyday living. Famed guest scientists are joining with Rochester's own science leaders in analyzing the application of human inventiveness "to make life not only longer but richer and happier."

Television, post-war housing, aviation, science in warfare, optics, and the control of disease have been among the subjects discussed, in greater or less detail, in the broadcasts since the initial program on New Year's Day.

That program featured Dr. Wendt, President Valentine, and Mrs. Alice Wood Wynd, member of the State Board of Social Welfare. Dr. Wendt, pointing out that a billion dollars a year is now being spent on scientific research, declared that new industries, largely created by war and producing such articles as synthetic rubber, penicillin, dehydrated foods, and devices based on electronics, "will effect more changes in the American way of life than were brought by the railroad, the automobile, the telephone, and radio!"

"The laboratory is the birthplace of the future," he declared. "We have time to prepare for the days of the helicopter, of pre-fabricated housing, of radio power, television, new foods, and new medical discoveries that will prolong life for most people by ten or even twenty years.

"The ultimate job of science is to eliminate altogether the problem of earning a living and of staying alive, and give us time to live. The real purpose of all the machines and inventions is to give the human race leisure."

Mrs. Wynd promptly challenged the scientists to give thought to the social consequences of industrial advancement. Television is coming, but in the immediate future is likely to be too expensive for family use, she said; will television call people to the corner saloon and the private club, or will "television centers" be established in schools, churches, and town halls?

"As for science’s promise to prolong life, I cannot see that extended years are always a blessing," she added. "I've visited elderly people in county homes, and I've seen them living in unspeakable dreariness and glum misery from which I came away praying that I may die while still relatively young."

Donald W. Gilbert, '21, professor of economics and

The editors regret the delay in presenting this issue of THE ALUMNI-ALUMNAE REVIEW. It was necessary to call upon the already overburdened Alumni Office and Alumnae Office to prepare the "Military Intelligence" list of University alumni and alumnae, faculty and staff members serving in the armed forces. Since both offices are carrying heavy wartime schedules of work, involving admissions and other University duties as well as alumni and alumnae service, it was not possible to have these service rosters completed until after February 1.
Courses Speeded, Classes Expanded
To Meet Post-War Call for Doctors

There is going to be a tremendous need for trained physicians after the war is over, and the University's School of Medicine and Dentistry therefore is expanding its entering classes by 30 per cent as compared with pre-war admissions, according to Dr. George Packer Barry, professor of bacteriology and assistant dean of the Medical School.

Like most other medical schools, Rochester's is on an accelerated basis which compresses the normal four-year course into thirty-six months, with vacations eliminated.

Dr. Barry cited these reasons for the expected demand for medical men when peace comes:

1. The Army and Navy will not be demobilized immediately after the war, all indications being that we shall need to keep large forces. Many physicians now in the military services will doubtless continue in them for some time, he believes.

2. The ratio of physicians to the civilian population is getting smaller because of continuing military requirements. (Of 180,000 physicians in the country, 30,000 are too old to practice; 30,000 more are elders carrying on as best they can, leaving 120,000 active physicians, of which number upwards of a half are in the armed forces. Thus, only some 60,000 doctors are available to shoulder the civilian load.)

3. Tremendous pressures for more widely distributed medical care will increase the demand for competent physicians. General social developments in the post-war period will require many more physicians and surgeons.

4. Health problems in the war-ravaged countries will increase the need for trained medical men and women.

"The demand will be so great that there can be no hope of meeting it at an early date," Dr. Barry said. "Because of the closer relationship of the entire world that will exist after the war, opening the way to the rapid, global spread of epidemics, it will be a matter of tremendous importance—of selfish interest even—for the United States to help other nations with their health problems."

Finding and training qualified men and women for medicine is the hardest single personnel problem the nation faces, in the opinion of Dr. Barry. He pointed out that there is no substitute for long, hard training, and "you can't make a doctor in a hurry."

"The students are getting as much instruction as before—in fact, they actually are taught eight more weeks than in the pre-war, four-year course. They are getting knowledge, but less of the wisdom that is essential to a good physician," he observed.

Dr. Fairchild, Ace of Geologists, Dies; Glacier Study Won Him Fame

The crowded lifetime of Herman Le Roy Fairchild, professor emeritus of geology, ended November 29, 1943. The veteran scientist, who had been an active member of the University's faculty from 1888 to 1920, and who had won international fame for his studies of the glacial history of New York State, died at Strong Memorial Hospital after six years of illness. He was 93 years old.

Professor Fairchild tramped countless miles over the entire state, and extended his explorations into New England and Canada, in an untiring search for information on the area's geological history. He returned to the classroom to tell his students about what he had seen, bringing back photographs by the thousand—pioneering in the field of visual education. He made geology an exciting and thrilling thing; it was almost impossible to listen to him without becoming—for a time at least—an enthusiastic seeker after kames, eskers, moraines, and drumlins.

"Fairey" wrote about geology with the same zeal that he lectured about it. He penned some 260 articles on the subject, based upon weekend and vacation explorations. Nothing dealing with local geology escaped his interest. The massive and dramatic history of the Genesee River, its pre-glacial wanderings through the Irondequoit Valley, was the subject of long study and the theme of many of his writings; but he liked also to map the brooks and creeks that laced the Rochester scene a mere thousand or 10,000 years ago. For many years he visited nearly every sizeable excavation in the city, the cellars of cottages or the basements of big office buildings, looking for the gravel streaks that marked the paths of long-buried waterways.

Professor Fairchild's final crusade, continued from his sickbed, was in behalf of drinking water for the city of Rochester, drawn from the long-buried stream of the pre-glacial Genesee. His observations of land contours in Monroe County had convinced him that the river had carved a great channel along the course of the present Irondequoit Valley, from Rush to the bay. The glacier blocked this ancient waterway and filled it with debris; when the ice retreated, the Genesee ploughed out a new course, west of its ancient path.

Through this old channel, Dr. Fairchild contended, water still flows, moving through the porous glacial drift. Test wells, sunk near Rush, did not yield the quantity of water that had been anticipated; but they did prove the shrewdness of Dr. Fairchild's deductions. Geophysical tests, and the wells themselves, revealed that the river, in years before the ice age, had etched a mighty gorge in the living rock, just as the keen-eyed geologist had asserted. The drillers were obliged to penetrate a full 400 feet of gravel, sand, clay, and boulders before bedrock was reached. Even veteran geologists were amazed to see how accurately Dr. Fairchild had mapped this buried channel.

Bausch and Lomb Offers Scholarships To Be Awarded to Science Students

Five new scholarships, to be awarded annually to high school graduates who have demonstrated high ability in science and to be supported by the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company, were announced by the University in January.

Available to men and women students, the Bausch & Lomb scholarships carry an annual stipend of $500 for three years, with the University providing necessary loan funds to the recipients in their fourth year.

The scholarship plan is an extension of the program begun in 1932 under which the Bausch & Lomb Honorary Science Award, a bronze medal, is given to students in secondary schools who graduate with high honors in scientific subjects. The medal has been awarded to more than 20,000 students in 2,000 schools throughout the United States. The new scholarships will be open for competition among the students who have won the Science Awards. A University Committee of Awards will make the final selection. Each scholar will be expected to make science his major study, concentrating in optics, physics, engineering, chemistry, or mathematics; a limited number may be permitted to major in pre-medical or other courses. While academic promise will have first consideration, factors of personality and leadership will also be taken into account.

One of the first practical fruits of the gift will be evident shortly when Bausch & Lomb begins the distribution of 10,000 special booklets featuring descriptions of the scholarships and of the University of Rochester. While Bausch & Lomb will undertake the production of this brochure, its preparation and editing will be largely in the hands of Charlie Cole, '25, director of the University's office of Public Information.

In announcing the scholarships, President Alan Valentine noted that the optical company and its officers are continuing a long-established affiliation with the University. The John J. Bausch-Henry Lomb Laboratory on the River Campus was the gift of families of the firm's founders, and the Institute of Optics, only school of its kind in the world, was founded with substantial contributions from Bausch & Lomb and the Eastman Kodak Company.

Eastman and Women's College Grads Join in Sponsoring Music Program

By Louise Sweetnam Baxter, '38

Highlighting the Alumnae calendar for 1943 was the Christmas Musical and Buffet Supper held in Cutler Union on December 12. The artistic work of Bernice Whitham Brugler, '25, and her committee in decorating the lounge and dining hall, plus the gusts and snorts of Old Man Winter outside, offered a most fitting welcome to the Spirit of Christmas.

Alumnae of the Eastman School of Music and of the Arts College settled themselves around the large Christmas tree in Cutler Union at 5 o'clock to hear the music presented by alumnae of the Eastman School. Mary Bughton Nugent, '34, alumnae president, introduced the soloists whose generous contributions made the afternoon's program one of complete enjoyment. They were Lorene Carpenter, '41, violinist, Mari Taniguichi, vocalist, and Frances Newman, '41, pianist. The program was arranged under the guidance of Eileen Malone, '28. Miss Malone, familiar to Rochester audiences as harpist with the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, lent her own talents in two solo numbers.

The candlelight at the buffet supper served also to celebrate the forthcoming 80th birthday of Edward G. Miner, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University. Other guests present were Mrs. Miner, Dr. and Mrs. E. Wayne Marjarum, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kneisel, and Dean Janet H. Clark. Acting as hostesses were Bernice Whitham Brugler, '25, Alice Booth Holmes, '13, Monica Mason McConville, and Frances Greene Wilcox, '23.

Following the buffet supper, Dr. Howard Hanson, Director of the Eastman School of Music, was introduced as guest speaker by Janet Phillips, Alumnae Secretary, who reminded us that Dr. Hanson had just returned from conducting the Boston Symphony in the premiere performance of his own Fourth Symphony which was written as a memorial to his father. This symphony was more recently conducted in its premiere radio performance by Leopold Stokowski with the NBC Symphony Orchestra.

New York Alumni Honor Art Loeser, Hear Account of His Final Battle

A graphic account of the final valiant hours of the cruiser Atlanta, destroyed in the Battle of Guadalcanal in an action which resulted in the death of Lieutenant Commander Arthur E. Loeser, '23, was the high point of the 1943 meeting of the Greater New York Alumni and Alumnae Associations on December 6.

The Achievement Award of the Association, given annually to honor the outstanding alumnus of the New York area, was bestowed posthumously upon Art Loeser. Tribute to Art and his ship was paid by Captain Ernest R. Eaton, USNR, who represented the Navy Department at the presentation.

He brought this eyewitness story of the Atlanta's last engagement, as told to him by a member of the Atlanta's crew:

"We were part of a task force screening a landing on Guadalcanal on November 11, 1942, and that morning repelled a level bombing attack. That afternoon, a dive bombing attack was repelled. (The Atlanta was an "anti-aircraft carrier," and bore a heavy complement of heavy and light sky-pointing guns.)

"On the 12th, a flight of thirty-one torpedo planes attacked us, and our airmen from Guadalcanal and our ships shot thirty of them out of the sky. The water was full of floating wings.

"That night we escorted our supply ships out, and then went back after an enemy fleet that was bearing down on Guadalcanal. We did the unexpected. The enemy approached in three columns, and we steamed right down the line between two columns. Our guns were firing at a tremendous rate, and I could feel hits against our ship. We had to turn hard once to avoid ramming an enemy destroyer that cut across our bow. The Japs were very confused, firing at us and at each other, with many of the..."
shots intended for us hitting their own ships in the other column. Our range at times was only 150 yards—pretty close firing range.

"Two torpedoes, fired by Jap destroyers, disabled us. When they hit, it was like the front wheels falling off a moving car."

One of these torpedoes smashed into the engine room, killing Art Loeser and his crew. The torpedoes did not sink the rugged cruiser; but the Atlanta was so badly damaged that she was destroyed by demolition charges.

She was in action for three roaring days at Guadalcanal, and had been in four previous battles. Built in 1941, her first engineering officer was Art Loeser, assigned to this duty while the cruiser was still under construction.

"In no small measure, her remarkable accomplishment was due to his diligence as an engineer," Captain Eaton said.

"By his unflagging spirit of patriotism, by his acceptance of high responsibility, his skill, industry, and devotion, he made an enduring contribution, not only to the preservation of our country, but to the immortality of freedom itself."

The Navy Department itself, Captain Eaton reminded the dinner group, has paid high honor to Art Loeser by naming a destroyer escort after him. This ship, launched last year and christened by his widow, is now in service with the fleet.

Dr. Weet Named Trustee Secretary; Tasks Shifted for Dalton, Wilder

Dr. Herbert S. Weet, '99, was named secretary of the University's Board of Trustees at the winter meeting of the Board on January 29.

He succeeds the late Samuel M. Havens, his classmate, who died last fall. For the past year Dr. Weet, former Rochester superintendent of schools, has been administrative officer and armed forces representative at the University, in charge of University dealings with Army and Navy Departments.

The appointment of Lester O. Wilder, '11, as acting dean of the College for Men, was also confirmed by the trustees. Lester has been director of admissions and student aid, and is taking over the duties of the late W. Edwin VandeWalle, '21.

Charles R. Dalton, '20, alumni secretary and counselor of admissions, has been appointed acting director of admissions.

MORE SALES VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The War Stamp and Bond Booth in McCurdy's, staffed for two years by alumnae, needs more volunteer aides. The quartette of faithful saleswomen above includes, from left, Mary Madden Conway, '36; Judith Ogden Taylor, 'l3; Ruth Otis Gillette, '18, and Marion Taylor Bobacket, '10, chairman of the alumnae sales force.

More Stamp Sellers Wanted!

The Alumnae Association's sole volunteer war project, the War Stamp Booth in McCurdy's store, may have to be abandoned unless additional helpers to staff it are obtained, according to the chairman of the unit, Marion Taylor Bobacket, '10.

One of the first stations established in Rochester for the sale of War Stamps and Savings Bonds, the alumnae booth has been one of the most successful of the more than twenty booths now operated by various women's groups. It recorded $45,000 worth of sales in 1942 and $127,000 worth last year, netting $27,000 during the Third War Loan drive.

"Staffing the booth has been most difficult," Mrs. Bobacket says. "It has to be kept going day after day, week after week, through summer and winter, during all holidays with their extra evening hours; and, so far, the booth has been supported by a mere handful of workers who have been most loyal. But where are the many others who are so sorely needed to keep your booth functioning? Those of us who are not engaged in war work can surely spare three hours a week, or three hours every two weeks, to support this project."

Volunteers are asked to telephone Mrs. Bohacket at Culver 4928-M.
Cagers Win Ten, Lose Four Games; Trim Cornell, Beat NYU in Garden

This has been Lou Alexander's thirteenth year of coaching at Rochester, but the record of the Varsity basketball team to date—ten victories against four defeats, with the string of enemy scalps including, Sampson, West Virginia, Cornell, and New York University—indicates that the numerical hoodoo has been at most only moderately effective.

On the road the 1943-44 Varsity has been particularly impressive, dropping only one decision away from its home court and that to the potent Hobart cagers at Geneva. Cornell was vanquished at Ithaca, West Virginia was smothered at the Buffalo Auditorium, and NYU was unable to stop the Varsity in the latter's initial showing in Madison Square Garden. Baldwin-Wallace, Canisius, and West Point invaded the Palestra to conquer the Yellowjackets.

Former Fordham and Syracuse players have generally monopolized the Varsity's starting lineup. Bob Mulvihill, Bob Gebhardt, and John Bach, V-12 transfers from Fordham, and former Syracusans Paul McKee, Nick Matchuk, and Barney Werner have carried the greater share of the court load.

A good share of the Rochester victories have come as the result of sharp second-half scoring blasts. In contrast, Rochester played its best game against Army, and against NYU, in the early minutes of the contests.

In its opener, on December 11, the Varsity swamped the Syracuse Air Base by a 64 to 32-point score. A week later a scrappy and under-rated Baldwin-Wallace five upset Rochester, 35 to 34, by a scoring drive that overcame a third-quarter Varsity lead of 9 points.

The Sampson Naval Station quintet lost a one-point decision when Nick Matchuk, who had kept the Varsity in the running with his scoring thrusts, netted a goal from the foul line to break a 41-41 deadlock in the closing seconds of the game.

Oberlin was ahead at the half in the first 1944 game, New Year's night, but fell apart in the second period when Bob Gebhardt rang up 7 straight points to initiate a barrage that swamped the Ohioans 46 to 32.

Wooster College (Ohio) started strongly and knotted the score repeatedly in the first half, but the Yellowjackets found the range well before intermission, and, paced by Johnny Bach, who sank 19 points, overwhelmed the outmanned invaders 59 to 32. Johnny also fattened his scoring average at the expense of Clarkson Tech, making 26 counters as the boys from Potsdam went down, 59 to 48, in a spirited contest.

Cornell was reputed to have one of the best teams mustered at Ithaca for many seasons, but Johnny Bach's guarding fettered the Big Red's most potent scorer, Bob Gale, and Bob Gebhardt tossed in 22 points to lead the way for a 41 to 35 victory. Three days later the Varsity invaded the Memorial Auditorium, Buffalo, to meet the West Virginia Mountaineers, and crushed the southerners 49 to 36. Gebhardt again led in the scoring with 18 points, and he and his mates kept Rochester well out in front throughout the battle.

Union, at Schenectady, offered unexpectedly strong resistance to the Varsity victory march, and Rochester trailed most of the way. Lou's pupils pulled up to a 41-all tie with less than three minutes to play, then meshed 6 additional points while holding Union to a single charity toss.

Hobart, which has been meeting Rochester in basketball since 1901 and has notched but five wins as against 42 losses, has a top-flight team this year, as it proved at Geneva by taking a decisive 54 to 43 verdict. The Genevaans stole a page from Rochester's book by staging a punishing rally in the second half.

The Canisius battle was packed with drama as the Varsity, woefully outclassed in the first half, stormed back to overcome a 12-point deficit and go ahead by four counters. Then Canisius launched a counter-attack of its own, winning 56 to 50 in a roaring finish. Bob Gebhardt's 27 pointers equalled the Varsity scoring record set last year by Jim Beall.

Hobart was beaten on the Palestra court, 53 to 49, in a see-saw fray that saw the lead changing no less than 15 times, with Gebhardt's 25 points helping to offset the enemy's determined assaults.

West Point's unbeaten Generals, superbly conditioned, and with a surplus of towering sharpshooters, outlasted the Varsity, that played the Army on even terms for most of the first half and then went down to a 57 to 43 defeat. Rochester was held to 17 points in the second half while Dale Hall, Army forward, and his allies were scoring 27. Gebhardt, with 18 points, Johnny Bach, and Paul McKee did most of the scoring for Rochester.

The Varsity, in its Madison Square Garden debut, faced NYU as decided underdogs by reason of its three recent losses. Injuries suffered by Bob Mulvihill, and Bob Gebhardt's illness, further reduced Rochester chances, but the Violets proved less formidable than was expected. Using substitutes freely, Rochester maintained its edge throughout the first half and at one time in the second stanza boasted a 15-point lead. Then NYU lashed out with a spurt that brought it up within striking distance of the Yellowjackets. With less than a minute to play Rochester missed three free throws, and a NYU forward tossed in the tying two-pointer. With the score standing at 42 to 42, Bob Mulvihill provided the story-book finish by a neat set shot after the Varsity had used up all but two seconds of the remaining time tossing the ball around, and Rochester won, just before the gun, with a 44 to 42 score.

Widow of Trustee Charles A. Brown Gives 1,000 Volumes to University

A thousand fine books from the library of the late Charles Albert Brown, '79, and Mrs. Brown have been presented to the Rush Rhees Library, adding to the distinguished list of gifts from these generous friends of the University.

Standard sets of well-known authors make up a large portion of the gift. Mr. Brown was a devoted lover of books, even in his undergraduate days, and the sets are sumptuously bound, many of them being collector's items. They will find place in the Treasure Room, the Welles-Brown Room, or the stack. In accordance with the terms of the gift, any volumes not of direct use may be disposed of to the best interests of the library.

In 1914 Mr. Brown gave the University his famed collection of literary and historical letters and manuscripts, later making many important additions to the original gift. With the late Francis R. Welles, '75, he planned the Welles-Brown "Browsing Room" in the Rush Rhees Library, and stocked it with many fine books from his own library. Both served many years as members of the Board of Trustees of the University.

As an escape for the worry-worn housewife, harassed secretary, and frazzled defense worker, the alumnae have planned a "Fun Night" for their next meeting in Cutler Union on Leap Year Night, February 29. The supper at six will be followed by a program of skits and faculty and alumnæ will share the spotlight. With Dr. Arthur May as master of ceremonies, the talent scouts have signed up Dean Janet H. Square dancing will follow the program and there will be tables for bridge in the lounge.

MEANDERINGS

The old tradition of the sailor who sailed the seven seas for all of his adult lifetime without learning to swim is being knocked into small bits at the University of Rochester. All of the V-12 trainees at the River Campus are being given intensive swimming instruction, and Roman (Speed) Speegle, Varsity swimming coach, says that by the end of a year’s instruction most of his pupils will be able to stay afloat for two hours or more.

The Navy, well aware that thousands of American fighting men have been drowned in the multiplied amphibious operations of the armed forces, gives swimming a major place in the V-12 physical education program. When the 800 Navy and Marine Corps trainees reported at the River Campus last summer, tests disclosed that 130 of the men couldn’t meet the minimum swimming requirements, which demand the ability to paddle fifty yards. These men were put in special classes, reporting at the pool five days a week. They weren’t permitted to do any other physical education work until they had covered that fifty yards in water. The ranks of these tank neophytes have rapidly thinned; now, Speed says, only a half-dozen or so lads remain in the tank awkward squad.

Swayne P. Goodenough, ’13, served as captain in the field artillery in 1918, and is bewailing the fact that he hasn’t maintained his skill as a marksman. The other day he tried to slaughter a sparrow with a shotgun, missed the bird, and thoroughly perforated a treasured length of pre-war garden hose hanging in the barn.

Charles Cole, ’25, director of the University’s New Bureau, is well pleased with the manner in which the University has been featured on local, state, and national broadcasts during the past few months.

In addition to the “Time for Science” broadcasts, described on Page 3, there have been the following radio appearances for the University:

Fred Waring’s Pennsylvanians gave a coast-to-coast Victory Tunes salute to the University and its V-12 students on September 18. Fulton Lewis, Jr., during the Third War Bond Campaign last fall, broadcast from the Eastman Theater and described University achievements in research, as described in the October-November issue of The Review. All but one of the football games were on the air from WHEC, some on a state-wide hook-up.

President Alan Valentine took part in one of the “For This We Fight” programs on the NBC Network.

The Coca-Cola “Spotlight Bands” gave a broadcast over 166 stations from the Palestra on December 21, sending Louis Prima’s hot band here for the program saluting the V-12 unit. The band stayed on for two additional hours of dance music, providing a rare holiday treat for the military and civilian students, including many from the College for Women.

Frank Silva, of Station WSAY, has done an outstanding job lately in broadcasts of the Rochester basketball games.

Although the “Time for Science” series is being broadcast only from WHAM, it has more than a local audience, Charlie says. Since WHAM is a clear-channel station, it can be heard in distant sections of the country. Incidently, the Office of War Information (OWI) has expressed interest in the series, and has made inquiries as to the availability of recordings for shortwave broadcasts for the edification of American fighting men overseas, and for propaganda purposes.

Beginning her second year as head-mistress of Rakha Girls School, Fatehgarth, U.P. India, Doris E. Crawford, '33, reminisces of her experiences abroad. "It's as though I were walking through the pages of the National Geographic," she writes. "I still gasp with delight every time I see a wedding procession, a caravan of camels, elephants shuffling along, or a native bazaar. The frequent religious and social festivals of India cover up temporarily some of the poverty and unhappiness that are present. The war has brought the cost of living so high that the common people are having difficulty getting enough to eat and many things we would like are unobtainable."

She tells encouraging news of the strides in educating the young village girls. Continuing her own study in languages, she is gradually mastering Urdu and Hindi.

"Fog Magic," a newly published children's book, has won for its author, Julia L. Sauer, '14, the Fairchild Prize for creative art. The story of a girl in Nova Scotia, "Fog Magic" was written from material gathered by Miss Sauer in Little Harbor, Nova Scotia, where she owns a cottage. In presenting the award which is given annually to the resident of the Rochester area "who is judged to have produced the most meritorious and praiseworthy creation in art, poetry, or literature," Dr. Richard Greene described her work as possessing unusual distinction, imaginative quality, and charm.

After her graduation, Miss Sauer studied at the New York State Library School and has been affiliated with the Rochester Public Library for many years, where she is head of the Department of Work with Children.

The honor of being the first American singer ever to make a debut on opening night at the Metropolitan fell recently to Thelma Altman, Eastman School of Music, '41, who appeared as Feodor in "Boris Godounoff," playing opposite Ezio Pinza. Sixty years ago there was only one American singer in the Metropolitan; and now 60 per cent of the company is American trained.

Miss Altman, who received her Performer's Certificate from the Eastman School Opera Department, will be remembered for her many performances in the Eastman Theater. After her graduation she went to New York to continue her studies and was in the cast of "Rosalinda." Her contract to the Metropolitan came as the result of her performance in the Metropolitan auditions of the air.

Esther Miller, '43, of Reading, Pennsylvania, recently made the headlines of the Associated College Press when she was interviewed by its Washington correspondent as the typical Government intern. One of fifty students chosen for training at the National Institute of Public Affairs in Washington, D. C., Esther, a Rochester Prize Scholar and Sociology major, is studying the machinery of government in operation.

The interns follow a seven month's course which includes frequent visits to Capital Hill to attend House and Senate committee hearings and to sit in on agency conferences. After the first months of orientation, they choose one particular branch of government in which to concentrate. Directors of agencies, bureaus, and divisions discuss their work at regular lectures and the interns submit progress reports to the Institute.

Albert S. Sherman of Rochester is another '43 graduate in this group which was recently entertained by Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House. Harold Smith of the Budget Bureau and Chief Justice Stone have also entertained the interns.

A feature article in Mademoiselle and Vogue magazines in the same month is no small accomplishment, but to Harriet VanHorne, '40, it is just another assignment in a rapidly expanding career. In addition to writing a daily radio chatter column for The New York World Telegram, Harriet interviews most of the visiting screen and radio celebrities in Manhattan, previews Broadway's plays, and has appeared on several network shows. She is also writing a book on her experiences as a newspaper columnist.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE

Here is the latest complete list of University of Rochester alumni and alumnae, faculty members, and staff who are in the armed forces and in related wartime activities, corrected to February 4, 1944.

Because of the high mobility of the military forces at the present time, no attempt has been made to give the complete addresses of all those listed. The camp or station is indicated for persons at present stationed in the United States. In general, an APO following a name indicates overseas service, and the initials N. Y. indicate a New York City APO; S. F. indicates San Francisco, and N. O. New Orleans.

If you wish to write to a classmate or friend, and lack his address, you are invited to make use of the forwarding facilities of the Alumni Office. Enclose the letter in a stamped, sealed, envelope, on which is written the addressee's name and class, and mail, in a larger envelope, to the Alumni Office. The latest available address will be added and the letter promptly forwarded.

Sixty-seven per cent of the uniformed alumni of the College for Men are commissioned officers, in the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, according to an analysis made late in 1943 by Charles R. Dalton, '20 alumni secretary.

At that time, there were 729 alumni in the armed forces—487 in the Army, 220 Navy, and 12 Marines. Twelve per cent of these alumni are non-commissioned officers, 12 per cent privates or seamen; 2 per cent are in officer candidates' school, and 3 per cent in Medical School. Highest Army rank is held by Major General Albert W. Waldron, '12. There are four colonels, fourteen lieutenant colonels, twenty-one majors, fifty-one captains, and 180 lieutenants. The Navy has two alumni captains, James B. Sykes, '17, and George A. Seitz, '18; one commander, ten lieutenant commanders, eighty-one lieutenants, and ninety-three ensigns.

One of the most difficult tasks handled by the Alumni Office is the listing of addresses for service men. These addresses change at a bewildering rate; on one day recently the office made sixty-one revisions in its mailing list.

A single asterisk (*) indicates that the person is deceased; two asterisks () that he is listed by the War Department as missing in action. Three asterisks () precede the names of those who are prisoners of war.

AN ENSIGN GETS HIS SHIP:
"I have seen the equipment installed and have watched the dock trials. I am very pleased with the performance of the G-E work as is everybody else. If the rest of the equipment on board is as good, the Axis forces will rue December 7, 1941. She's a swell ship—one that will make history ..."

FROM AN AIRCRAFT GUN TURRET:
"...It sure is good to sit in a turret and glance around and see the work put out by G-E. Quite a few units in our turrets bear the G-E Monogram. You feel safe when you turn on your power switch and know that all your electric units will work in good order ..."

FROM NORTH AFRICA:
"...I have had the opportunity to work with General Electric equipment and it has stood up to the test under extreme conditions. "Over here in this North African theatre of war we members of the amphibious force are having a very busy time of it. During this time we have yet to find equipment fail us when we really need it. We have been in two of the major invasions over here and have been subjected to relentless attacks from the air. Bombardment generally is very hard on equipment, but as yet none has failed us to the extent we have not been able to use it. I wish to say that all the fellows over here really appreciate that ..."

IN THE SIGNAL CORPS:
"...I've run across quite a lot of G-E equipment, especially in radio... As long as the people on the home front keep pouring out such fine workmanship, we have no fear of coming out on the short end ..."

NORTH AFRICA:
"...It sure shows the boys here that the G-E is behind the boys 100% and also by seeing all the equipment with the G-E label on it also shows us that the G-E is accomplishing the greatest achievements of all times, not only through quantity but also quality, which all sums up to our slogan of quantity plus quality equals victory, which has been proved here in North Africa. The boys all tell me I could be proud of working for such a great company. I told them that I already knew that ..."

One of the Promises
Men Live By

AT THE TOP of the page is one of today's anti-Swastika symbols. There are thousands of others. Each trade-mark of an American company producing for war is such a symbol.

What makes these symbols important is what has been put into them by the men and women producing this war equipment, and the way this equipment will be used—by American boys against the Axis. But the way the men in the armed services feel about these symbols is important too.

The letters quoted in part at the left tell how some of these men—General Electric men now in the Army, the Navy, the Marine Corps—feel about one of these symbols, the G-E Monogram, the trade-mark of General Electric.

We, 192,000 G-E men and women, are producing material today for almost every battlefront in the world. We are going to keep on producing this material to the limit of our productive capacity, to the highest of our quality standards, as long as it is needed by American boys anywhere on earth. This is no more than simple duty. But the Monogram we send along on every piece of equipment is something more. It is a message, and a promise, from us to the boy who is going to use that piece of equipment. We are glad that he understands this message. It is, God willing, a promise that he can live by.
