DR. HENDRICK DAM

The scientific world's highest honor, the Nobel Prize in Physiology and Medicine, has been awarded to Dr. Dam, Danish-born discoverer of Vitamin K, shown here in his laboratory at the School of Medicine and Dentistry, where he is senior research associate in biochemistry. [Story on Page 2.]
Dr. Dam, of Medical School Faculty,
Wins Nobel Prize for Vitamin Study

For the second time in a decade a Nobel Prize award, highest accolade in the field of science, has come to a member of the faculty of the School of Medicine and Dentistry. Recipient of the 1943 Nobel Prize in Physiology and Medicine was Dr. Hendrik Dam, senior research associate in biochemistry, for his discovery of Vitamin K and its effects in halting bleeding.

Dr. Dam shared the award with Professor Edward A. Doisy of the St. Louis University School of Medicine, who explored the chemical nature of Vitamin K and produced it synthetically. Each was given a medal at a notable meeting held in New York City on December 10, and each received half of the prize of 123,690 Swedish kroner, Dr. Dam's share being $14,750.

Dr. Dam, 49 years old, is a native of Denmark, educated in the Polytechnic Institute, Copenhagen, and at the University of Copenhagen, where he was associate professor of biochemistry when he made his discovery of the K vitamin. Dr. and Mrs. Dam were engaged in the study of nutrition and were using chicks, fed a controlled diet, when Mrs. Dam noted hemorrhages under the skin of the chicks. This bleeding was checked when leaves and leafy vegetables were made available.

Vitamin K, found to be the factor which halts the flow of blood, naturally has wide application in the field of medicine, and is credited with saving many lives.

When the German Army invaded Denmark in 1940, Dr. Dam had already made arrangements for an American lecture tour under the sponsorship of the American Scandinavian Foundation. After many delays, he and his wife succeeded in obtaining visas for the trip, proceeding first to Sweden and thence to America.

He lectured at the Medical School here in 1941. At that time the difficulties to be surmounted in returning to Denmark were looming larger and larger, and when he was offered a post on the Medical School faculty he agreed to stay in Rochester.

The award in New York was made by the Swedish minister, Wollmar F. Bostrom, with King Gustav of Sweden and President Roosevelt joining in congratulations to Dr. Dam and other prize winners.

Exactly ten years earlier, on December 10, 1934, Dean George H. Whipple, head of the School of Medicine since its founding in 1921, had received the Nobel Prize for his studies of pernicious anemia.

The Nobel Prizes are a memorial to Alfred B. Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, who died in 1896, and who directed that the income from his $9,000,000 estate should be used annually to reward those who had contributed most to the welfare of mankind.

Normally there are prizes in physiology and medicine, physics, literature, and peace. The peace prizes have been suspended during the war years. American scientists took a heavy share of the science awards for 1943 and 1944. The physiology and medicine prize for 1944 went to Dr. Joseph Erlanger, of Washington University in St. Louis, and Dr. Herbert Gasser, of the Rockefeller Institute, New York, for their research in the differentiated functions of single nerve fibers.

Gridmen, Winning Five out of Eight, Make Burnham's First Year a Success

Going to press on the eve of the Yale game, the previous issue of The Review told of Rochester's first six football games. The Varsity completed its 1944 campaign by winning five of eight contests, dropping a 32 to 0 decision to Yale and defeating Case 19 to 0, as the season ended. It was a successful first season for Coach Elmer Burnham, sweetened by the Varsity's upset victory over Colgate.

Yale, Baldwin-Wallace, and Miami took the measure of the pupils of Elmer Burnham, and Rochester's own list of grid victims included Rensselaer, Union, Oberlin, and Colgate, in addition to the Case Rough Riders.

Yale held Rochester well in check through most of the afternoon in the Yale Bowl, with a sizeable crowd of Rochester rooters finding some measure of solace in a stand that turned back the Elis at the 2-yard line, and in three reasonably deep invasions into Blue territory. Thanks largely to the running of Hamp Burnett and Bib Ballard, Rochester reached the Yale 15 in the second quarter, and in the third penetrated to the 7 and 29-yard areas.

Case turned back the Varsity in the first stanza of the final game, but faded in the second quarter, a Lansdale-blocked punt and a Case fumble leading to two touchdowns before half-time. The last quarter was running out when Rochester scored again, striking 45 yards for a touchdown with Bib Ballard carrying the ball.

Graduation and Navy shifts had removed some of Rochester's backs and linemen before this final game. Whitey Whitler, who played in the backfield for Rochester against Yale, two weeks later donned a Yale uniform to start in the Yale-Brown contest, having been transferred to New Haven with other Marine trainees at the end of the June-November term.
Pioneer X-ray Study at University Brought Fame to Henry E. Lawrence

“You ought to write a story for the REVIEW about Henry Lawrence and the x-ray,” an alumnus told us. “Don’t you know that he was the first man, outside of Germany, to make an x-ray picture?”

So we wrote a letter to Henry E. Lawrence, professor emeritus of physics, member of that Class of 1889 which produced so many famed educators. Dr. Lawrence, now living in Pultneyville, replied that x-ray research at Harvard, Yale, and Columbia preceded his own investigations at Rochester.

“There can be no doubt, however, that I was the first in Rochester to take x-ray negatives,” he added. “This was shortly after I came to Rochester, in 1896, when the physics equipment was hardly existent.

‘Professor Otis Robinson, ‘61, who preceded me, had bought at his own expense several Crookes tubes which were highly evacuated. It occurred to me that some one of these might generate x-rays if properly excited and this proved to be the case.

‘This tube by good fortune is still intact and in my desk at the Eastman Lab. I have the negative. It has occurred to me that these might be worth a place in a local museum.’

While the modest professor thus dismisses, in a few sentences, his pioneer studies in producing x-ray negatives, the press of 1896 was not so reticent. The x-ray was hot news in the early months of that year. Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen, distinguished German scientist, had just published, in November, 1895, the results of his epochal investigations, proving that the mysterious “x” rays could penetrate substances opaque to light, passing through metal and living tissue and recording their hidden structures upon photographic plates. One Saturday night three months later, Henry Lawrence made the first x-ray negatives in Rochester. The date was February 22, 1896. Next morning's DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE made no mention of the local happening; but it did publish a three-column article on Roentgen rays—already dubbed “x” rays—for-casting their wide use in surgery and industry. Professor Wright, the famed Yale physicist, had, the article said, located shotgun pellets in the corpse of a wild rabbit. Before the week was out, Henry Lawrence was to use the x-ray Lawrence the first negatives made by this process in this city.

That Sunday article did have one sentence of uncanny prophecy! "One direction in which the invention promises to be particularly useful is in the detection of flaws in metal, as in castings, armor plate, etc. A weld so finely made as to be quite invisible to the naked eye is brought out at once in a shadow-photograph by the Roentgen rays.” Probably the average Rochesterian, reading the article after church that Sunday morning, dismissed this forecast as a bit of imaginative moonshine; but less than fifty years later, the University’s million-volt x-ray laboratory has equipment that can reveal flaws deep within the huge steel castings that Rochester foundries turn out.

On Monday morning, February 24, the x-ray story broke. Local news, except for murder trials, apparently were distinctly underplayed in those days. Nevertheless, an enthusiastic reporter penned a full column, headlined thus:

A TRIUMPHANT SUCCESS
Experiment of H. E. Lawrence with Roentgen Rays
IN THE NEW LABORATORY
The Instructor in Physics at the University Has Developed Several Remarkable Negatives Made by X-Rays

NOTE: This issue of The Alumni-Alumnae Review contains the complete list of University of Rochester men and women in the armed forces. Space limitations, therefore, have made it necessary to omit the class notes of the College for Men and to hold over until the next issue many articles that normally would appear at this time; and the Table of Contents has also been eliminated.
This negative, treasured by Henry Lawrence for nearly fifty years, is believed to be the first made of a human subject in Rochester. Dr. Lawrence thinks it is the hand of George F. Bowerman, ’92, radiographed the night of February 22, 1896, as described in newspaper accounts of the history-making Lawrence experiments.

"The taking of photographs by the means of Roentgen x-rays is an exceedingly simple process and an easy one to accomplish, provided the essential apparatus is at hand. The University of Rochester was fortunate enough to be already in the possession of the necessary appliances at the time of Roentgen’s work, and through the efforts of H. E. Lawrence the first negatives made by this process in this city have been satisfactorily developed. Mr. Lawrence has had charge of the physical laboratory at the University for the past two years and has made many experiments along these lines.

"Some time ago Professor Robinson supplied the physical laboratory with Crookes and Geissler tubes, the former of which are used in the Roentgen process. But for this, it would be impossible for Mr. Lawrence to repeat these interesting experiments, as the unforeseen demand for what was heretofore used only by a small circle of German physicists has exhausted the supply on hand..."

"The apparatus used by Mr. Lawrence on Saturday night was of the simplest character. A current of twelve volts passed from a battery into a Rumkorff reduction coil, and from thence the x-rays passed into the Crookes tube, which is held in an ordinary plate holder which also sustains the plate directly beneath the tube.

"A silver quarter, a bronze cent, a red lead pencil, a platinum 500-gram weight, a match, and a celluloid comb were placed on the cover of the plate holder. The current was turned on and allowed to operate the coil for about half an hour. In the developed negative, the bronze and silver coins and the platinum weight appear about equally opaque. The lead, which is as in all colored pencils a large one, appears to possess about the same opacity with the coins. The wood of the pencil shows dimly as does the wood of the match. The comb obstructed the rays but slightly, having about the same intensity as the wood of the match."

For the second negative, a nickel, a dime, an ordinary black lead pencil, two platinum weights and one aluminum weight, a piece of ordinary window glass, and two blocks of wood were posed. Then the reporter, somewhat breathlessly, wrote:

"In the third negative, the hand of George F. Bowerman was laid on the cover and an exposure of twenty minutes was made. The outline of the bones came out clear and strong and the flesh can also be observed. The joints appear well defined, but the fingernails left no impression whatever. A gold ring upon the little finger appears much too large and too far out toward the end, until the observer remembers that the flesh must be taken into account in fitting a ring and that the third joint is the usual place for such an ornament."

The man who thus offered his hand for the purpose of science was, of course, that of George F. Bowerman, ’92, who later became head of the Washington Library. At that time he was reference librarian at the Reynolds Library in Rochester, although for some curious reason he is not listed in the city directory for that year.

There is evidence that this third negative, made by an alumnus of the hand of an alumnus, was the first successful x-ray picture of the human body made in America or indeed outside of Germany. Experimenters at Yale had had little success in probing human bone structure; neither had the English scientists.

The Democrat and Chronicle, that had scooped the city’s press with its Monday morning story, continued to feature Henry Lawrence and the x-ray throughout the week. On February 25 it was noted that a negative had been made of the hand of an unnamed student who had a mutilated finger. The next day a woman arrived at the laboratory with a sore hand, pierced two months before by a needle. Two doctors had probed for the bit of steel without success. Would Mr. Lawrence find it for her, and spare her a third session of agony? A negative was made, but no needle was revealed.
FIFTY YEARS OF LAWRENCE

The woodcut, left, is from an undated clipping in Dr. Lawrence's cherished scrapbook, and was made in 1895. The briar pipe and broad Lawrence smile are typical today—although the picture was taken at his fiftieth reunion in 1939.

On Thursday a Rochester surgeon brought one of his patients—a man who had accidentally shot himself in the hand eight years earlier. The first negative showed a shadow that might be the bullet. The second located the missile conclusively. Thus, within five days after the first x-ray negative was made, Henry Lawrence's crude apparatus was put to practical use.

The Democrat and Chronicle, in all seriousness, proposed that veterans of Bull Run and Antietam, still carrying within their bodies Rebel musket balls, come to the laboratory and take away with them photographic proof of their ancient wounds, so that their stories would no longer be challenged.

The story of the x-ray, featured for nearly a week, died down. The Democrat gave little space to it during the second week, permitting the Post-Express to score the journalistic beat of running the first picture of the first negative.

Basketball Men Beat Case in Opener, Drop Thriller to NYU in Garden

Lou Alexander, tutoring a basketball squad lacking in height and seasoning, has come up with a quintet that has shown promise in its early games. It has beaten Case, fallen to New York University, Colgate, and Baldwin-Wallace. In Madison Square Garden it battled the powerful NYU team on even terms for most of the way, yielding in the game's latter stages to the Violet's superior reserves.

Case was beaten 61 to 34 in the opener as George Ewing rang up 19 points. The Varsity smashed to an early lead in the first minute and was out in front all the way, enjoying a 35 to 16 advantage at intermission.

The Varsity gave 17,000 Madison Square Garden spectators their money's worth on December 6, and for the first three quarters it was a see-saw contest, the lead changing 9 times as the Varsity's speed and fighting spirit made good its deficiencies in height and experience. The teams were deadlocked at 20-all at half time, and a Rochester spurt gave it a 25 to 21 lead shortly after play was resumed. NYU pulled up to knot the score, and then, in the final 8 minutes, used its stock of high-grade reserves to win by a 53 to 39 score. Rochester's captain, Clarence Hutchins, a former Middlebury star, headed the Varsity list of scorers with 16 points.

The Colgate game was a stirring overtime match, the Raiders winning 50 to 49 on their own floor. Again the Varsity played under a height handicap, and Colgate led 25 to 20 at half time. Aided by Homer Mark's 14 points, and Captain Hutchins' 13 counters, the Varsity kept within shooting distance, and in a final spurt tied up the scoring at 47-47 as time ran out. A Colgate free throw and a two-pointer in the overtime period outweighed Rochester's single goal from the floor.

Rochester returned to the Palestra for the Baldwin-Wallace match and ran into an interval of erratic marksmanship that cost a 42 to 38 loss. Don Diehl, a substitute, kept the Varsity in the running with 14 points, but the Rivermen missed a total of 9 free throws.

Women's College Choir Gives Program At Pre-Christmas Meeting of Alumnae

Highlighting the holiday meeting of the Alumnae Association on Sunday, December 17, at Cutler, was the Christmas Vesper Service given by the Choir and Chapel Committee of the Women's College. Alumnae were invited to attend the service which preceded a buffet supper. Eighty-three undergraduates participated in the program which began with a very impressive candle-light procession. Following the supper a program of string music, under the direction of Betty Ogden, violinist, was given in the main lounge. The lovely Christmas tree in the bay of the lounge and the decorations of pine boughs served as a fitting background for a capable and enjoyable performance.

Helen Seifert Wolgast, '14, program chairman, was assisted by: Catharine Crozier Gleason, '36, Henrietta Bancroft Henderson, '14, dining room; Virginia Patchen Lauterbach, '25, decorations; Kate Louise Hale McKinstry, '24, hostesses; Justine Furman Harris, '42, guests and invitations; Margaret Hewins Waldo, '39, publicity.

The following guests were invited: Mr. and Mrs. Alan Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Miner, Mr. and Mrs.
Harper Sibley, Mr. and Mrs. Kendall B. Castle, Mr. and Mrs. M. Herbert Eisenhart, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Lovejoy, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Gleason, Dean Janet H. Clark, Miss Ruth Merrill, Dr. and Mrs. George H. Whipple, Dr. Howard Hanson, Mrs. Hans Hanson, Mr. Raymond Wilson, Mrs. William B. Hale, Mrs. Rush Rhees, Dr. and Mrs. John R. Slater.

Rochester Men's College Has Counseling Plan To Aid G. I.'s Complete Education

A co-ordinated counseling service has been established in the College for Men, available to returned war veterans, former students now in military service, and other members of the armed forces seeking advice on admission to Rochester or to other universities.

The counseling service is under the direction of Lester O. Wilder, '11, dean of the College for Men. The admission or re-admission of returning veterans is the task of Charles R. Dalton, director of admission in the College of Arts and Sciences. Robert J. Trayhern, '34, has been named counselor to returning veterans, and Tom J. Gorham, '35, vocational counselor in the Men's College, is liaison officer between the college and the Veterans' Administration.

Scheduled for early distribution is the University's special pamphlet, "Education for Veterans," which gives information on the opportunities available at the University, and lists the service man's educational benefits under state and federal "G. I." scholarship bills.

It is expected that the main work of the counselor will be with the approximately 330 former students of the College for Men who are now in the armed forces. Most of them have been sent a letter from Lester Wilder explaining in detail the various ways in which they can continue their interrupted college studies while they are still on active duty or awaiting demobilization and discharge.

Other fields of counseling service, as outlined by Dean Wilder, will be to keep in continued touch with these former students, advising them of the opportunities of in-service study provided by the Armed Forces Institute, and telling them of courses which they may profitably pursue, by correspondence or otherwise, while still in uniform, and to give tentative information on the amount of credit they may expect the Men's College to grant for such courses when completed and evaluated.

Alumnae Service Roll Lists 90 Women: Many Are Given Overseas Assignments

By Ruth Nadel Lempert, '36

From the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli? Well, not exactly. But if you look for a University of Rochester alumna in service in Hawaii, New Guinea, Australia, England, or France, not to mention many posts in this country, you are pretty sure to find one.

The call for a direct contribution by American women in this war has been answered by approximately ninety alumnae of the University. Wearing the uniforms of the WAC, the WAVES, the Nursing Corps, and the American Red Cross, and doing a wide variety of jobs, ranging from instructing to hostess work, these girls have earned a place on the University's honor roll of men and women in the service of their country.

A Rochester alumna in the WAC is Lt. Irene H. Pratt, '23, who is now serving as administrative officer in a company of assigned cooks at the Third WAC Training Center, Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Irene was formerly supervisor of English at Irondequoit High School in Rochester.

Lieutenant Anna S. Abbot, '21, of the WAC has been assigned to Headquarters Fourth Service Command as assistant liaison officer, Army Emergency Relief, since April 1. After completing basic training at Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., Anna reported to Ft. Des Moines, Iowa, for Officer Candidate School. She was commissioned June 5, 1943, and was assigned to Headquarters Seventh Service Command as an instructor in Court Martial procedure, traveling to posts within the command to conduct short courses for officers. Her next tour of duty took her back to Ft. Oglethorpe, where she was first, a supply officer for a basic company, and later an executive officer for a bakers and cooks company. At present, Lt. Abbott is stationed at Atlanta, Ga., as Assistant Liaison Officer, Army Emergency Relief, cooperating with the Southeastern Area Red Cross. One can easily imagine the extent of human suffering revealed in a job that involves reading letters from literally thousands of people who are moved by emergencies to seek financial aid.

Pvt. Shirley A. Scott, '43, is now in France, serving with the Women's Army Corps. Shirley writes that she arrived in England in July 1943, liked it and has many English friends. She also likes the French people. She mentions that Captain Davis, first University of Rochester alumna to don a uniform, is assistant administrative officer at Headquarters of 4th Air Corps, San Francisco.

Lieutenant Wells is general ward nurse with an Evacuation Hospital in Italy. Her hospital was the first medical unit in the 5th Army to receive General Mark Clark's plaque for meritorious service by non-combat units.

Lieutenant Reifert is with the Naval Meteorological School at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Betty Lawless is staff assistant with the American Red Cross, on duty somewhere in England.

trained by members of the famed Washington, D. C. Marine Band, is the only official Women's Reserve Band. It has made appearances at nearby cities but has never before gone on an extended tour.

Serving with the American Red Cross is Jean E. Parkes, '38. Jean is working as a Red Cross camp secretary and recently arrived in Australia. Before her appointment with the Red Cross, she was employed by the Eastman Kodak Company here in Rochester.

Another Red Cross worker is Virginia Ann West, '38, who is serving as an American Red Cross staff assistant in London.

Elizabeth Lawless, '38, is also serving as a staff assistant with the Red Cross in London. Elizabeth was a member of the Home Service department of the Rochester Red Cross chapter before her present appointment.

Representing the Alumnae Association in North Africa is Mary A. Hotchkiss, '34 who is an American Red Cross field director of hospitals there. Mary was senior investigator for the Department of Public Welfare in Rochester from 1935 to 1938 and was a social worker in the social service department of the Presbyterian Hospital, New York City, prior to going overseas.

Somewhere in New Guinea, Beatrice Parish '36 is doing hospital recreation work with the Red Cross. She writes that her work is varied, including craft work with the hospital patients and, in her spare time, drawing up plans for their "jungle edition of a Red Cross hospital program." Beatrice joined the overseas staff of the Red Cross about a year ago. For a year, before embarking for the Southwest Pacific, she was stationed at Fort Devens, Massachusetts, with the hospital unit in which she is now serving.

December, 1944—January, 1945
Elva Baer, '39, is another Red Cross worker in England, serving as a staff assistant. She loves her work, which consists of practically everything from teaching dancing to playing hostess. Elva writes, however, that all is not perfect, and the food they are getting leaves a great deal to be desired. Ice cream, for instance, has been excluded from their vocabulary for four years.

In every field and every branch of service, we find our alumnae taking their places. Rochester can indeed be proud of its women in service.

Roy Koch, Buzz Deacon, Bib Ballard Receive Alumni Grid Awards for '44

Leroy Koch and John (Buzz) Deacon, tackles, and Bib Ballard, back, received post-season honors when they were given the alumni awards for outstanding gridiron play in 1944—a season that initiated Elmer Burnham as football coach, and that wound up with five victories in eight starts.

Koch, who played in only three games—fracturing his leg in the Union game September 23—received the Raymond G. Phillips Trophy as the player showing the greatest improvement. A Marine trainee, he had never played football before this year, but won a regular starting berth at left tackle and was regarded by Coach Elmer H. Burnham as one of the most promising members of his squad. His home town is Kankakee, Illinois.

Deacon, now an officer candidate at Parris Island, received the Ball-Keating Trophy as the year's outstanding linesman. Six-foot-four, and weighing 200 pounds, he came to Rochester with some sound football schooling gained at Blair Academy.

Bib Ballard, christened Robert, was named the squad's outstanding back and the winner of the Gordon Wallace Trophy. He was the Varsity's best ground gainer, and turned many enemy marches into Rochester scoring stabs by his pass interceptions. He was transferred to Hobart College at the end of the July-November term.

The Phillips Trophy, oldest football award, was established by the late Raymond G. Phillips, '97, treasurer of the Associated Alumni for many years prior to his death, and an enthusiastic football fan. Raymond N. Ball, '14, and Kenneth Keating, '19, contributed the trophy which bears their names, and the Wallace cup commemorates Gordon L. Wallace, '23.

Normally, these awards would have been announced at the Touchdown Dinner, given by the alumni to honor coach and players. This year, however, the dinner was held before the season ended, on October 25, with the Yale and Case games still to be played. Over 100 alumni turned out for the dinner, held at the University Club and featured by addresses by President Alan Valentine and Coach Elmer Burnham, and the coach's presentation of the individual members of the squad.

War Services Boost Operating Costs, Report of Treasurer Thompson Shows

Operating costs of the University of Rochester rose to $5,287,784 in the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1944, up $653,172 from the previous year's total, according to the annual report of Treasurer Raymond L. Thompson, '17, issued in November.

Capacity use of the University's plant and equipment brought about by the accelerated educational program, war research, and Naval training schedule brought about this rise, according to the treasurer. War research engaged the attention of 160 faculty members and assistants; the million-volt Industrial X-ray Laboratory, and a laboratory operated for the United States Government and employing 225 investigators, have been operated continuously at capacity.

Strong Memorial Hospital incurred a deficit of $70,627 during the year, as a result of medical relief extended to persons unable to pay the cost of care given them.

The University's endowment funds at the end of the fiscal year were $53,390,177, and additions during the year totaled $369,402.

Of the $45,287,784 operating cost, 17.9 per cent, or $946,888, was met by receipts from students in fees for tuition, board, and lodging. Patients in Strong Memorial paid $1,447,035, or 27.4 per cent of the total. The remainder was provided from endowment income, special gifts and grants, and by the United States Government in payment of the costs of operating the Navy V-12 Training Unit.

MEANDERINGS

Herb Schaeffer, the photographer who took the picture of Dr. Hendrick Dam, on the cover of this magazine, wishes Medical School employees would reach an agreement as to how to pronounce the distinguished Nobel Prize-winner's name.

He called the school to ask for an appointment, and asked for Dr. Dam—pronounced with a broad a, rhyming with palm. The operator told him there was no such person on the faculty, finally said: "Maybe you want Dr. Dam." (Short a, this time, as in damn.) So, when he arrived at the school, he asked at the reception desk where Dr. (short a) Dam could be found. The receptionist corrected him, insisted it was Dr. Dam with a broad
a. The elevator operator changed it back to a short a. Then, when Schaeffer arrived at the Dam office, the latter's secretary switched to the broad vowel again. And she had irrefutable authority for that pronunciation:
"That's what his wife calls him, and she ought to know."

The fellows who worked with George Maloney, '34, on THE CAMpus and later at Eastman Kodak weren't surprised when George, now a lieutenant (jg) in the Navy, did an outstanding job assembling and editing the Navy film for the Sixth War Loan, entitled "We Said We'd Come Back." He's stationed at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia.

Carlyle B. Newcomb, '20, has been promoted to lieutenant commander af-after sixteen months' Navy service in the Mediterranean, and recently received the Commendation Ribbon from the Secretary of the Navy.

latest reports, is a Pfc.

Another interesting alumna to pay us a visit recently was Ida Padelford,
'27, now living in Ashville, North Carolina. Ida is a free-lance writer, has had several books published, and is now embarking on a very interesting radio project. She and two other women from the Ashville A.A.U.W. have a six month's contract for an afternoon program. She believes that the home influence is the most important factor in shaping the character of children, and hopes to develop a series discussions for the family that will bring up all types of pertinent subjects and problems. A fourth person, a specialist in whatever field they cover on that day, will go on the air with them. The project has a tremendous scope, and Ida will be very glad to receive any ideas which might warrant discussion.

stowed annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce upon the person

"SOMETIMES I WISH
THEY WOULDN'T PLAN THESE AFFAIRS
ON SUCH A LARGE SCALE!"

The Stars and Stripes
recently printed this cartoon, from the pen of John F. "Tuck" Faulkner,
'43, who, as basketball fans will remember, was a star performer on one of a couple of Lou Alexander's pre-V-12 court squads. The clipping was forwarded by Lieut. Lansing Mc-Dowell, '39, who spotted it while on duty in Belgium.

In a letter to Chuck Dalton, '20, Alumni Secretary, Lance revealed that the Germans weren't 100 per cent successful in looting the Belgium wine supply. He's been sampling some very fine vintages, hidden behind masonry walls in the cellars of Belgian residents to protect it against the raids of thirsty Nazis.

Lieut. Pat Meagher, '41, has a place on the University's casualty list, printed elsewhere in this issue, although he is safe in this country and visited in Rochester recently. He bailed out when his Fortress, of which he was navigator, was hit in a raid over Bulgaria. Held prisoner for eight months, he was released when the Bulgarians capitulated. And Lieut. Tom Mooney,
'43, who forsook football three seasons ago to sign up as a Navy flier, survived the sinking of the Carrier Princeton.

Esther Hurley De Weerdt, '18, second Rochester alumna to receive a doctorate, was in town recently. She received her M.A. at Rochester in 1920 and three years later was awarded her Ph. D. in psychology at Yale. Her present position, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Society for Mental Hygiene, is not only exceedingly interesting but vital to our post-war world. She is setting up mental hygiene programs in various communities aimed at helping the returning serviceman to re-adjust to a peace-time life.
The programs are based mainly on showing employers how to help "nervous" veterans, overwhelmed by harrowing experiences while in the armed forces, regain their equilibrium and earlier efficiency. Next to his family, his employer holds the key to the future of the man. In preparing programs today whereby employers can note maladjustments and take constructive steps to remedy them, Mrs.
De Weerdt hopes that many serious problems of maladjustment will be avoided.

who most nearly approximates in civic achievement the record of the late Rochester editor, goes to Allen E. Kappelman, '33.

His list of community responsibilities included his service as chairman of the Young Men's Committee of the Central YMCA; as organizer and first president of the city-wide Young Men's Committee of the same association; and as chairman of its Committee of Management. He has also served as president of the Youth Council of Rochester; as member of the Board of Directors of Lewis Street Settlement; as director and treasurer of the Rochester Humane Society. He edited and interpreted the \textit{Youth of Rochester Report} and was one of the organizers and first president of the Rochester Junior Chamber of Commerce. His church leadership includes Sunday School teaching and serving as a member of the service board and committee sponsoring Brick Church Wednesday Noon Services.

The Class of 1879 held no reunion in 1944, the sixty-fifth anniversary of its graduation. The class won the Cubley Cup in 1929, with thirteen of its sixteen members back for their fiftieth reunion. In 1944 there were only two survivors—John A. Rockfellow and Uriah Bentley. Mr. Rockfellow celebrated by recalling that in 1876 the first "Field Day" was held, and '79 set out to win the main event, the interclass tug-of-war.

"We met and developed a system," he writes. "Billy Simpson was class president, and a good one. By setting our feet well in the ground, using the weight of our bodies and the push of our legs, we would surge as Simplex, standing in sight of the men on the rope and using a small cane as a music leader uses a baton, gave the signal."

The men of '79, sophomores, defeated the frosh. Then the seniors vanquished the juniors, and lined up against the sophs, expecting an easy victory; but the sophomores pulled the older men over the line. Quoting again from Mr. Rockfellow's letter:

"We went wild, intoxicated with joy! A rush was made for Anderson Hall, a new broom secured from good old janitor Elijah Withall. Then with the broom in the lead the victorious class of '79 marched in double-file, singing and shouting our class numerals.

"Old timers will remember the 'Oyster House' on Main near State in a basement under Reynolds Arcade. On the invitation of the class officers (only recently elected) we filed in and enjoyed a good spread. There were toasts and bursts of song, and our class slogan was adopted, 'We pulled 'em!'

"We were too full of pep to go home after the spread and marched the streets till nearly dawn serenading the members of the faculty and lady friends."

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE

Here is the list of Rochester men and women in the armed forces. It includes alumni and alumnae, faculty and staff members, and former students whose college courses were interrupted by war.

Complete addresses are not, in most cases, given, for the obvious reason that such a list would be out of date before it could be set in type.

The Alumni Office, however, is continuing its forwarding service. If you wish to write to a classmate, enclose your letter in an envelope, stamped and sealed, upon which is written the addressee's name and class, and mail, in a larger envelope, to the Alumni Office. The latest available address will be added and the letter forwarded.

Casualties—those dying in their country's service, missing in action, and prisoners of the enemy—are listed twice, in the general casualty roll and with their classes. A single asterisk () in the class list indicates that the alumnus is deceased. Two asterisks () in the class list indicates that he is listed as missing, and three asterisks () that he is a prisoner of war.

POST-WAR OPPORTUNITIES FOR TECHNICALLY-TRAINED GRADUATES

If you are a technically-trained graduate of the class of 1941, 1942, 1943 or 1944... if you entered military service without previous industrial connections... The Procter & Gamble Co. has a message of interest for you.

For many years, college men have made careers for themselves with this Company in the departments of Production Management, Chemical Research and Development, Plant Maintenance, and Mechanical Design and Development.

As America's largest manufacturers and processors of soaps, glycerine products, and vegetable fats and oils, this Company operates 29 factory and mill units in the United States and Canada. Each working day these plants produce one million dollars worth of soap, shortening and oil.

During the past 15 years an average of one factory each year—at home and abroad—has been added. Post-war plans are to continue this growth and to expand Company operations into new factories with new products and far-reaching technical developments.

Procter & Gamble has been built by men coming up through the business. Factory Superintendents generally are young men. The Company believes in developing its main group of executives instead of hiring them from the outside.

We do not wish to distract your attention from your present very important assignment. But when you are ready to return to civilian life, we should like the opportunity to discuss with you the industrial opportunities this Company has to offer.
