A Letter from the President

DeAR Alumnae and Alumni:

The topic of this letter concerns the decision of the Board of Trustees of the University to merge the men’s and women’s campuses in the next two or three years. It will not, however, be inappropriate to comment briefly on the highly successful character of the academic year which just has come to an end. Forces within the University which had been ready for new activity for some time began to move forward. The result was an exciting, stimulating and profitable year.

The major event, of course, was the decision to consolidate the separate activities of the two campuses. The decision was taken in late April. Now that some real time has elapsed, we are all convinced even more than before that it was an inevitable step to take.

I wish that I had the time and opportunity to set down really fully the very complex facts and circumstances which prevailed upon the administration and trustees to undertake so momentous a change.

One or two points can, however, be made. For example, the two colleges, when they were separately established a little over 20 years ago, were intended to be undergraduate liberal arts colleges. Almost as soon, however, as the men moved over to the River Campus, the University undertook an even more radical departure than the present merger. This was the decision to establish graduate studies. Graduate studies have prospered at the University, but they also ended the possibility of maintaining two strictly undergraduate colleges. For reasons of educational, as well as financial, policy, an institution which goes into advanced research and teaching must coordinate its facilities.

If the University is to grow, it must bring all of its resources of staff and equipment to bear upon a single integrated program. This is now being done. When it is done, the University of Rochester will be even more emphatically an enterprising and academically successful institution. I wish that it were possible to print even a few of the many letters of strong approval that have come from very competent educators all over the country.

There is an impression that the decision was hurriedly reached. This is not so. When I arrived just over a year ago, I found that a great deal of discussion had gone on for a number of years and that a considerable body of opinion, especially in the faculty, had grown up favoring consolidation. Into approximately four months we packed discussions, consultations and meetings where I would estimate we reached a good deal more than 2000 people, including Faculty, Trustees, townspeople and alumni. I was able to explain to them in great detail the important educational advances that were involved, the very serious financial aspects, and the very clear benefit to the University of Rochester as a whole that is certain to ensue.

It seems to me very likely that a number of you might like to have questions answered. If this is so, please do not hesitate to write and I shall do my best to answer your questions.

Yours very sincerely,

Cornelis W. de Kiewiet
Raymond N. Ball Elected Chairman of Trustees

Devoted Alumnus Succeeds M. Herbert Eisenhart; Marion B. Folsom Named New Board Member

FEW, if any, persons have taken a more active and effective interest in the life of the University of Rochester for more than 30 years than Raymond N. Ball, '14. It was particularly fitting that the Board of Trustees elected him as its chairman at the annual meeting on June 6.

As a devoted alumnus, a University official, trustee and Finance Committee chairman, he has had a major part in Rochester's development from a small college to a major university since 1919, and is ideally qualified by his experience and talent for leadership to guide the University in the next phase of its progress under the second century program.

Succeeds M. Herbert Eisenhart

He succeeds M. Herbert Eisenhart, a trustee for 26 years, like Mr. Ball, and chairman since 1945, who will continue to serve on the Board. Mr. Eisenhart helped to lead the University through the critical post-war years, the Centennial observance, the resignation of Alan Valentine and the task of selecting a new president which led to the inauguration of Cornelis W. de Kiewiet in June, 1951. In his letter of resignation he said that "the University is coming now to the beginning of a new era and one of bright hope under the most promising circumstances.

"With the new administration effectively launched on a program of tackling many of the University's basic and far-reaching problems, it seems to me essential that the Board of Trustees be activated with younger leadership that can be prepared to carry on over the years ahead," he said. "We all have the highest hopes and aspirations for the University as it brings to realization the untold potentialities of these immediate years ahead."

At its June meeting, the board also elected as a new member Marion B. Folsom, treasurer of the Eastman Kodak Company, nationally known as an industrial statesman who has helped to shape laws and policies in the nation's economic program since World War II. He was a founder of the national Committee for Economic Development and has been its chairman since 1950, and has been a leader in the formulation of progressive business policies as a member of the President's Advisory Council on Social Security, a director of the Congressional Committee on Postwar Planning, and a director of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Rochester awarded him an honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1945, and he holds honorary degrees from New York University and Hobart and William Smith Colleges. A graduate of the University of Georgia and Harvard Business School, he joined Eastman Kodak in 1914 and has been treasurer since 1935.

Harper Sibley Elected Trustee

Harper Sibley, an active member of the Board of Trustees since 1917, has been elected an honorary trustee.

The Trustees, in accepting Mr. Eisenhart's resignation with great regret and because of his insistence, passed resolutions paying tribute in the highest terms to the "excellent, energetic and intelligent service which he has rendered the University throughout his association with it."

They presented him a handsome Steuben Glass decanter, suitably engraved, as a token of their esteem.

Bernard E. Finucane, president of the Security Trust Company and a UR trustee since 1939, was named the new chairman of the Finance Committee.

Mr. Ball joined the University Administration as executive secretary of the Alumni Association in 1919, was made comptroller in 1922, and treasurer in 1923, serving until he became president of the Lincoln Rochester Trust Company in 1929. His was a key role in the Greater University Fund campaign in 1924-25, and he was one of three men on the building committee in 1928 that helped to conceive and develop the River Campus. In his annual report for 1928-29, President Rhees said of him:

Contributions Praised

"I desire to repeat my admiration and gratitude for the way in which Mr. Ball and his staff have handled our financial affairs. Moreover, Mr. Ball is to me and to the members of our faculties much more than our financial officer. He is our valued and trusted colleague and counsellor in all the academic affairs of the University, in which capacity he is as helpful as he is unassuming."

Mr. Ball was a member of the committees that selected Alan Valentine and Cornelis de Kiewiet as the fourth and fifth presidents of the University. In 1948 he was awarded the Associated Alumni medal for his notable contributions to the alumni organization, the University, and the community. Because of his leadership in civic affairs, he is an invaluable asset to the University in its community relations. He has served prominently in many civic posts.
In ideal blue and gold June weather, a hilarious softball game between Rochester and Hobart alumni, and a generally festive spirit combined to make this year's alumni commencement reunion a highly successful one.

Under the chairmanship of Clarence J. Henry, '25, the reunion committee introduced some innovations in this year's program that added to the effectiveness and liveliness of the occasion. One aspect that met with wide approval was arranging for many of the class reunion luncheons to be held on the River Campus. This brought a greater centralization of activity at the River Campus, with the result that there was a much larger attendance at the general alumni events during the afternoon than in past years.

UR-Hobart Alumni Game

The big entertainment event of the alumni reunion was the UR-Hobart softball game, surely one of the most bewildering displays of the national sport ever staged. The facts that there were no bases, that the Hobarts suddenly switched to lacrosse sticks instead of gloves for the last two innings, and that the officials were capricious, to say the least, contributed to the unorthodoxy and unpredictability of the contest. As the UR challenge stated, the game was to be played for nine full innings, "or until the useful participation of all contestants on one team or the other has been terminated by the invasion of the infirmities of advancing antiquity." The game ended in the fifth inning due to the exhaustion and confusion of the aging players.

By some legerdemain, it was officially decided that Rochester had won 10-5, but no one seemed very clear as to how that result was arrived at. For the Rochesters, John Remington, Vern Croop, Pat Ryan, Warren Collamer, John Sullivan, Fred Metzinger, and Norm Selke contributed base hits, Selke electrifying the crowd and himself by scoring a home run and touring where the bases should have been without assistance. Among the other UR stalwarts who took part were Matt Lawless, Ned Ogden, Al Gilbert, Bob Hoe, and Deke Allen. There seemed to be other Rochester players on the field at one time or another, but as no one paid much attention to batting order, it was impossible to keep track of everybody. Some disappeared for long periods into the refreshment tent, which necessitated frequent shifts in the lineup.

Post-Game Ceremony

A more serious note was struck in a post-game ceremony in which Jack Phillips, vice president of the Hobart Club of Rochester presented to the Rochester alumni a treasured old Hobart sculling oar, a relic of the days 75 years or so ago when Hobart had one of the top sculling teams in the country. He observed that the antique oar was "not very pretty, but to Hobart men it means a good deal," and that "we'd like you people to have it, in hopes that some day you might give us a chance to win it back." Nicholas E. Brown, UR alumni president, accepted the trophy for the Associated Alumni.

The Class of 1912, with Harry N. Kenyon as chairman, had its 40th reunion at the Theta Chi House; 1922, Richard Van de Carr, chairman, met at the Sigma Chi House for its 30th reunion; 1932, Melbourne J. Porter, chairman, at the Delta Kappa Epsilon House; 1937, John E. Mason, chairman, at the Alpha Delta Phi House; and 1942, William J. Bruckel, chairman, at the Theta Delta Chi House.

The largest gathering was that of the Class of 1927 at the Monroe Golf Club, where 55 members, including 16 from out-of-town, joined for their reunion luncheon, under the co-chairmanship of Paul E. Emerson and John W. Thorne, but the Cubley Cup for the class with the largest percentage of members at the reunion was won by 1917, John W. Remington, chairman, with 32 of its 46 members, or 69.5 per cent, present. The '17 group made a big weekend of it, with a supper Friday evening at Howard Henderson's delightful rustic retreat at Bushnell's Basin, luncheon Saturday at John Remington's home, and the general alumni dinner that evening in Todd Union.

Cubley Cup Runners-up

Runners-up for the Cubley Cup were '27, with 56.7 per cent of its members at the reunion, '97, the class of Frank Cubley, donor of the cup, with nine of its 17 members present, or 52.9 per cent, and '02, with 14 classmates, or 51.8 per cent, attending.

Ernest L. White, '02 chairman, rallied 14 classmates to the luncheon at the Country Club of Rochester. They included Manley G. Osterhoudt, of Port Arthur, Tex., Prof. Conrad H. Moehlman, of Los Angeles, Calif., Bailey B. Burritt, of Yonkers, Edward F. Feely, New York City, and Donald F. Bronson, Toms River, N.Y. George B. Williams of Geneva was chairman of the '97 reunion, also held at the Country Club. Albert Gubelman of New York City, who introduced a new Rochester song for which he wrote words and music, and Henry A. Smith, Louisville, Ky., came the greatest distance for the ’97 gathering.

These members of the Class of 1897 gathered together for their 55th reunion at a dinner held in the Rochester Country Club.

From as far as California and Texas came members of the Class of 1902 to attend their 50th reunion at Rochester Country Club.
Members of the Class of 1907 were luncheon guests of classmate Herman Cohn at their reunion gathering in the Rochester Club.

Two members of the Class of 1886 returned to the campus for the 102nd Commencement weekend — Judge William M. Northrup of Alhambra, Calif., and Fred A. Lewis, of Batavia.

The Class of 1907, Harold O. Stewart, chairman, met at the Rochester Club for its 45th reunion, and the Class of 1931, Irving L. Mix, chairman, held its postponed 20th reunion at the Lake Shore Country Club.

Dr. Curtis J. Lund Heads Med School Department

Dr. Curtis J. Lund of the Louisiana State University Medical School faculty is the new professor and head of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the School of Medicine and Dentistry, succeeding Dr. Karl M. Wilson, who retired June 30 after serving on the UR medical faculty for 27 years.

Dr. Lund will begin his new duties in September. He has held a similar position at Louisiana State Medical School since 1947. A graduate of the University of Kansas in 1929, he received his M.D. degree at the University of Wisconsin Medical School in 1935, and subsequently was on the resident staff of Wisconsin State General Hospital and the faculty of the University of Minnesota Medical School. He is known for his wide research interests, which include fetal asphyxia, nutrition and vitamin metabolism and placental function. He is president-elect of the New Orleans Gynecological and Obstetrical Society and has been associate editor of the Southern Medical Association.

UR Grants 994 Degrees at Commencement; Senator Paul H. Douglas Delivers Address

Nine hundred and ninety-four students received degrees at the University’s 102nd annual commencement in the Eastman Theatre June 9. The total includes 637 men and 357 women.

In addition, honorary degrees were awarded five men and one woman for outstanding accomplishments in their respective careers. Those honored were Senator Paul H. Douglas, who also gave the commencement address; Guy Fraser Harrison, conductor of the Oklahoma City Symphony; Miss Charlotte Whitton, Mayor of Ottawa, Canada; Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, president of the University of the State of New York; Arthur A. Houghton Jr., president of Steuben Glass, Inc., and Dr. W. Edward Gallie, dean emeritus of the Faculty of Medicine of the University of Toronto.

From the Men’s College, 129 received the B.A. degree and 113 the B.S. Forty-three of the B.S. degrees were in mechanical engineering, 12 in physics, 30 in business administration and two in nursing education.

From the Women’s College, 97 received the B.A. and 60 the B.S. degrees. Sixteen were science majors in education, one in chemistry, two in physics, 25 in nursing and 16 in nursing education.

Ninety-eight students of University School of Liberal and Applied Studies receive B.S. degrees, with 50 awarded in the field of general studies, 31 in business administration, and 17 in accounting. Eighty-four of the University School graduates were men and 14 were women.

Bachelor of Music degrees were awarded 48 men and 47 women graduates of the Eastman School of Music. Sixty-five men and five women received their M.D. from the School of Medicine and Dentistry, and the School of Nursing graduated 68 women.

Two hundred and sixty-four graduate students received advanced degrees from the Graduate School. The M.A. was awarded to 29 men and 14 women, the M.S. to 37 men and five women, the Master of Music to 43 men and 19 women, and the Master of Education to 34 men and 15 women.

Sixty men and eight women received the Ph.D.

Faculty Notes

President de Kiewiet was the commencement speaker at Pratt Institute on May 29, and at Hobart and William Smith Colleges on June 15.

Dr. Katherine Koller, chairman of the English Department, has been granted a Guggenheim fellowship to complete research for a new book entitled “Death and English Stoicism.” She will be on sabbatical leave from the University for the 1952-53 academic year, and will spend some time this fall in England, and later will complete here research at the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C.

Her husband, Dr. William E. Diez, associate professor of government, also will be on leave and plans visits to Europe and Africa.

Richard C. Wade, assistant professor of history, has been awarded a Social Science Research Council fellowship, and will be on leave for the coming academic year.
Dr. Donald Gilbert, Kenneth Keating Win Alumni Awards

UR Vice-president Cited as Great Teacher, Representative Keating for Legislative Integrity

Dr. Donald W. Gilbert, '21, who has served his Alma Mater as professor of economics, dean of the Graduate School, provost, and for the past year as vicepresident for University development, and Kenneth B. Keating, '19, prominent attorney and member of Congress from the 40th District, were honored by the Associated Alumni at the annual Commencement reunion dinner June 7.

They were chosen as this year's winners of the annual Alumni Awards for outstanding contributions in their fields of endeavor. Dr. Gilbert was chosen as the faculty recipient in recognition of his accomplishments "as one of Rochester's great teachers," and Congressman Keating for his national service which, as the citation stated, "has brought great honor to his Alma Mater."

Many Outstanding Contributions

Dr. Joseph B. Platt, '37, professor of physics, said in his citation of Dr. Gilbert:

"There are many reasons why we should honor Don Gilbert. He has made outstanding contributions to the University, the city of Rochester, and to the work of the Associated Alumni. As dean of the Graduate School, as provost, and now as vice-president of the University, and as a civic leader, he has done more than we should expect of any one man, to build a sound University and to make this University part of the life of the community.

"However, it is not because of these accomplishments that the Associated Alumni chose Don Gilbert as the faculty recipient of the Alumni Medal. It is awarded to a faculty member because of his teaching and his influence on our undergraduates, in class and on the campus. Six college generations of Rochester alumni remember Don Gilbert primarily as an inspiring teacher... for his ability to make economics come alive... as a faculty member who had time for his students and who continues to be interested in them, as students and alumni. His students are proud of his other accomplishments, but they are eager to have Don know they think of him primarily as one of Rochester's great teachers."

Kenneth B. Keating Cited

Calling attention to Keating's brilliant record as an attorney, Raymond N. Ball, '14, said in his citation:

"When the United States became involved in World War II, Ken was quick to offer his services to his country. He left his law practice, joined the armed forces, was commissioned a major and later rose to the rank of brigadier general. In 1943 he was sent to India as chief of procurement section in the China-Burma-India Theater... He was awarded the Legion of Merit with oak leaf cluster, and also the Asiatic-Pacific Theater ribbons with three battle stars.

Elected to Congress

"Returning to civilian life in 1946, Ken again consented to serve the best interests of his country. He was elected to Congress as the representative of the 40th Congressional District... No member of Congress has been more faithful in the discharge of his duties than has Ken Keating. He has been meticulous in serving the best interests of his constituents. His record as a congressman has no finer endorsement than that of his electorate. Since 1946, he has been returned to office every two years by an increasingly large plurality... If in Washington today each representative of the people possessed the integrity and the high ideals of Ken Keating, we would all have little concern as to the future of our great country."

1952 Alumni Fund
Passes $48,000 Mark

A total almost equal to last year's final tabulation, an increase in the size of contributions, but a decrease in the number of contributors. That's the story told by an interim report of the 1952 Alumni Fund as of June 30.

A total of 4,713 alumni and friends brought the 1952 fund to $48,604, according to this report. Women's College and Medical School already report higher totals than at the close of the 1951 campaign. Other divisions stand at slightly less than their former peaks.

With an anticipated 1,500 contributors still to be heard from, college and school totals on June 30 read:

- Men's College: $29,494
- Women's College: $10,037
- Eastman School: $2,104
- Medical School: $4,975
- Nursing School: $649
- Graduate School: $335
- University School: $484

Of particular note is the fact that nearly 25% of the total has been designated for "unrestricted" use by the University. The remainder has been designated for use in the scholarship and loan funds of the several colleges and schools.

The Century Club, composed of contributors of $100 or more, listed 84 members who gave a total of $10,835, an increase of more than $1,500 over last year's total.

Largest dollar amount contributed by any class in the Men's College was $1,875 from the Class of 1911. In the Women's College the Class of 1917 stood high with $379.

New Book by Dr. Dexter Perkins Praised

InDESTRUCTIBLE Dr. Dexter Perkins, surely one of the most constructively busy men on any campus, has somehow managed, in between his many heavy responsibilities, to find time to write another important book, this time "The American Approach to Foreign Policy," published in June by the Harvard University Press.

In addition to running the UR History Department, giving lectures, weekly radio broadcasts, and serving as chairman or member of many important groups, Dr. Perkins is the new moderator of the American Unitarian Association and chairman of the Harvard Foundation Council.

His new book is based on lectures which he gave in 1949 at Sweden's Uppsala University as Gottesman Lecturer. In a review of the volume in The New York Times, Lindsay Rogers, professor of public law at Columbia University, noted that there seems to be no end of books on recent American foreign policy, but that Dr. Perkins' "readable and informing book" is in a class by itself.

"Instead of dealing chronologically with the American approach to foreign policy," Professor Rogers wrote, "Dr. Perkins attempts to answer a series of questions: Is there an American imperialism? Does capitalism make for war? Why have we gone to war and what have we done to preserve the peace? Are our institutional arrangements ill-suited for a nation with tremendous power and far-flung responsibilities? . . .

"Dr. Perkins conceals his learning, but on almost every page there are indications that the author is no newcomer to the study of American foreign policy and that he has made it a life work. . . . The lectures say as much as is possible in the present juncture of human affairs: the fantastically rapid shift of alliances. We fight a war to exterminate German and Japanese militarism. Within five years we press for the creation of military establishments by our former allies to assist in the 'containment' of two of our late allies: the Soviet Union and Communist China. Dr. Perkins does not underestimate when he says: 'The capacity of a great self-governing people to deal with a continuing world crisis will be tested in the years ahead as it has never been tested before. And on that test the fate of many nations depends.' "

Raymond N. Ball, '14, presents the Alumni Medal which is awarded each year to an outstanding UR alumnus to Representative Kenneth B. Keating, Class of 1919.
THE Class of 1912, with Miss Marguerite Castle as chairman, was the winner of the Cutler Cup for the class having the largest percentage of returning members at the Alumnae Commencement reunion on June 7.

The cup was presented at the annual reunion luncheon in Cutler Union, at which Sol N. Linowitz, prominent Rochester attorney, television celebrity, and consultant to the Office of University Development, spoke on “New Ideas About Old Freedoms.” Pauline Kates Kline, ’32, was luncheon chairman.

Gertrude Broadwell Briggs, ESM ’27, was presented as the new president of the Alumnae Association for the coming year at the annual Alumnae Commencement Dinner the following day. Other officers for 1952-53 are Louise Gelli Wendt, ’28, vice-president; Ruth Swanker Sauer, ’50, secretary, and Katherine Van de Carr, ’19, treasurer. New board members are Helen Ancona Bergeson, ’38; Dr. Mary Jane Bird, ’55; Elizabeth Sullivan McGill, ’26; Hazel Chapman Merriman, ’10; Leah McParlin Uebel, ’06; Margaret Doerffel Waasdorp, ’37, and Margaret D. Young, ’27.

The Dean’s Fund, presented annually for the assistance of students in special need, and this year totaling $540, was turned over to Dean Janet H. Clark by Pauline Kates Kline at the reunion luncheon.

A feature of the Commencement reunion dinner was the presentation of a portrait of Dean Clark, painted by John Menihan, noted Rochester artist, to the University as the gift of Alumnae Association, Women’s Student Association, and special friends. The presentation was made by Janet Phillips Forbes, ’40, and it was accepted for the University by M. Herbert Eisenhart, retiring chairman of the board.

Mrs. Cornelis W. de Kiewiet, wife of the President, and Dr. Katherine Koller Diez, English Department chairman, were named as honorary members of the Alumnae Association. In citing Mrs. de Kiewiet for the honor, Mrs. Briggs called attention to her educational achievements as a graduate of Mt. Holyoke, with a master’s degree in physiology from the University of Chicago and a doctorate in nutrition and child welfare from the University of Iowa in 1928, as a member of Sigma Xi, and as a teacher at the State University of Iowa and the famous Merrill - Palmer School in Detroit, adding:

“In the short time she has been in Rochester Mrs. de Kiewiet has impressed us greatly with her quiet dignity, her graciousness and her obvious desire to know us better and become a real part of our University life. We have found her friendly and hospitable and she has created in the hearts of all of us a desire to know her better.”

Noting that “Dr. Koller is no stranger to any alumna, for she has been a willing and helpful friend to this association,” Anne Schumacher Hammond, ’39, in her citation listed Dr. Koller’s notable attainments as a research scholar in the field of the English Renaissance, as a teacher, department head, and speaker, and in her leadership of the series of conferences in 1948 which brought outstanding educators and writers to the University to discuss the nature and influence of cultural trends in literature. Dr. Koller also has enhanced her reputation as commencement speaker at Wittenberg College, where she received an honorary degree, as one of the few women to address the Modern Languages Association at its annual meeting, and in her numerous appearances as a speaker before community organizations.

Principal speakers at the Alumnae Commencement Dinner were Miss Charlotte Whitton, Mayor of Ottawa, Canada, and President de Kiewiet, who reviewed the exciting new educational developments initiated by the University during the past year, and in particular the plan to merge the Women’s College and the Men’s College at the River Campus under a coeducational policy.

Following the reunion luncheons on Saturday, several classes held individual activities. The classes of 1914 and 1934 had informal meetings in Cutler Union, ’31 and ’32 enjoyed punch parties at the homes of Edith Reed Van Horn and Dorothy Sheldon McLean, respectively, and ’33 gathered at the home of Edna Muntz, Miss Marguerite Castle, ’12, and Margaret Neary Bakker, ’13, entertained their respective classes at buffet suppers at their homes.

Preceding the annual alumni-alumnae dance in Todd Union Friday evening, June 6, the Class of 1942, under the chairmanship of Mary Pierce Sunderlin, had a dinner party at the University Club.

Anne Schumacher Hammond was Commencement dinner chairman, with Shirley Cohn Brodows, ’37, as assistant chairman, assisted by Anne Johnston Skivington, ’40; Louise Sweetnam Baxter, ’38; Dorothy Stack Voss, ’28; Gertrude Broadwell Briggs, ’27, and Janet Phillips Forbes, ’40.

Harris Chair Filled

Dr. Robert E. Marshak, Physics Department chairman, has been named Harris Professor of Physics, one of the oldest endowed chairs of the College of Arts and Science, established in 1870 with funds given by Tracy Harris of New York City.

Class of 1952 Gains Permanent Place in Sun, Presents Outdoor Timepiece to University

The Class of 1952, Men’s College, is assured of its place in the sun as long as time endures.

It made sure of that when it gave as its gift to the University a handsome bronze sundial, mounted on native rock, to be placed in the new men’s dormitory quadrangle at the River Campus. William Ehrich, noted Rochester sculptor, designed the dial, which is being cast at the Roman Bronze Company, New York City. It is 20 inches in diameter, and bears this inscription:

“Erected and dedicated by the Graduating Class of 1952. Time flies over us but leaves its shadow behind. Hawthorne.”

The class committee, headed by Edward Rummel, searched for some time, with the help of Mr. Ehrich, to find the right kind of boulders for the pedestal, which is 40 inches high, dug and laid the foundation, and erected the base. The Men’s College NROTC unit helped on the project, with Lieut. Comdr. Silvio DeCristofaro, assistant professor of naval science, assisting with the calibration for locating the dial to true north.

Industrial Optics Conference Hailed; Sessions Attract Leading Research Men

The Institute of Optics has another “first” to its credit as a result of its sponsorship of a Conference on Optical Methods in Industry. Purpose of this new-type industrial meeting held at the River Campus June 18-20 was to discuss methods of industrial research, inspection and quality control where the use of light has particular advantages.

With over 200 representatives of 57 different companies and organizations, including five governmental bureaus, in attendance, each day of the conference was assigned to the problems of a different group of industries. Morning sessions were devoted to formal papers by industrial scientists. Afternoons, the engineers, professors and research men divided into groups for round-table discussions.

Dr. Brian O’Brien, director of the Institute of Optics, stated that the conference was an experiment in the exchange of ideas on the applications of optics because, “new developments in optics offer wide new possibilities of which industry sometimes fails to make full use.”

Among the many great industries represented at the conference were the Ford Motor Company, General Electric, Bell Telephone Company, Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., Pratt & Whitney, Eastman Kodak, North American Aviation, International Business Machines, and the Monsanto Chemical Company.

Those who attended the conference were unanimously enthusiastic about it and many expressed the wish that it become an annual event. Typical of their comments was that of Dr. Max Herzberger, a top-flight physicist for Eastman Kodak, who described the conference as “interesting and important as many international society meetings I have attended.”
Two unusual and significant financial gifts from Rochester corporations, each strengthening the University's program in different but equally effective ways, have given dynamic impetus to the second century educational development project.

Haloid Establishes Chair

The first, announced May 26, was an initial contribution of $15,000 from The Haloid Company, manufacturers of photographic products, to establish a new Professorship of International Economics. Through its president, Joseph C. Wilson, '31, who also is a UR trustee, the company stated that it will finance the chair on a continuing basis over the years. The University is seeking an outstanding scholar to occupy the new chair.

The second, disclosed June 19, was a contribution of $45,000 from The Pfaudler Company to the University's unrestricted endowment funds, to be paid in three annual installments. Mercer Brugler, '25, is president of Pfaudler's, and Edward G. Miner, a UR trustee since 1910, is chairman of the company's board.

Gifts Hailed By Press

Both gifts were hailed as showing not only industrial vision, awareness of the close relationship between private business and higher education, and acknowledgement of the importance of the trained mind in a free government, but also an understanding of the University's special needs. Of the Haloid Professorship, a Rochester Times-Union editorial said:

"The Haloid Company's undertaking with the University of Rochester to finance a professorship in international economics has greater significance than the ordinary endowment of an academic chair. It carries industry's support of higher education to the final and, we believe, highest level.

New Spirit Evidenced

"Support by industry of some particular technological teaching and research is not uncommon. Less frequently industry backs pure science. But the spirit behind the new gift is expressed in the first sentence of Haloid President Wilson's letter to the University, which says: 'The world needs most today men who understand other men.' This goes all the way toward the final purpose of all education worthy of the name. Scientific and technological marvels have become almost routine. Yet for all their genuine benefits to mankind, anxiety characterizes the times. Man's understanding of man has not kept pace with his understanding of his physical world."

Far-Reaching Significance

Another editorial, in the Democrat and Chronicle, declared that "vision is required of a company which can say . . . that if industry can spend great sums in research, it can ill afford to neglect the resource which developed the idea—the human mind.' Yes, a great industry will profit by an enrichment of general understanding, by the deeper training of minds. Yet it cannot hope to gain immediately and exclusively. We prefer to think of this gift as an evidence of business, industry, at its best—a concern for the community, for youth, for the country at large."

Pfaudler Endowment Fund

Establishment of the $45,000 Pfaudler Endowment Fund, made with no restrictions as to the use of the income, was characterized as "a splendid tribute to the University policy and leadership, a recognition of the common interests between community and college," as emphasizing "the value of the University of Rochester to the city's industries and to the entire life of the city," and as "healthy indications of the place the University holds in the business thought . . . that are among the best assurances of continued growth."

President de Kiewiet called the gifts "clear evidence of the growing understanding of far-sighted Rochester industries of the University's value to their interests and to the total life of the community." Each contribution will be of great assistance in strengthening the University's program, each in a different way—the Haloid Professorship because it singles out for support a University function of national importance and emphasizes the significance to the community of having in the University nationally known scholars and teachers; and the Pfaudler Endowment fund in that a leading business enterprise, assessing higher education and in particular the University of Rochester, gives its pledge that private enterprise will help private higher education to endure and progress.

Company Aims Cited
In announcing the Haloid gift, Wilson said that the firm's directors had authorized the gift "in the firm conviction that corporations must take part in the fundamental but-tressing of men's lives together."

"We believe that the strengthening of higher education is everyone's most important responsibility for the future," he said. "We spend substau-tial sums for plants and machines for years of productivity. We spend for research and development looking to new and better products to be made five, 10, 20 years from now. . . . We are spending with the University a relatively insignificant amount to help assure the most important thing of all, that our young people will measure up to greater, more creative tasks than we can. If Haloid can spend hundreds of thousands of dol-sars developing an idea, such as Xerography, it can ill afford to neglect the resource which developed that idea—the human mind.

Men of Depth Needed
"We believe that our own leaders of the future must be men of depth, whose science and technology, essential as they are, are leavened by rich experience in literature and art, economics, history, and religion. Because we fear there may be a trend toward technical specialization in education, that whole men may be hard to come by, we want to put what weight we have on the other side of the scale.
This kind of support is more important to the country, and thus to Hal-oid, than any direct service."

An Unusual Step Acknowledging that the action "is an unusual step for a company such as ours," he said that The Haloid Company "will undertake to support over the years a Professorship of International Economics at the University of Rochester to be filled by a man whose intellect will play over one of the great issues of the times, the relationship and responsibility of the business man to world society."

Mr. Miner said that it is important to the community and the nation to keep the University strong and progressive. In placing no restrictions on the use of the Pfaudler gift, he said that its officers recognize that a university, like a private enterprise, contantly faces new conditions and contingencies, and must have adequate unencumbered resources to maintain the flexibility necessary for a dynamic, forward-looking program.

Faculty Salary Adjustments
Although it has made no stipulations as to how the income shall be spent, he said, The Pfaudler Company has, however, indicated its serious concern for the economic position of the University's faculties during a period of inflation, and has suggested adjustments in faculty salaries as one of the uses to which it would be glad to see this gift put.

Both men stressed the point that by providing talented and well-trained graduates, the University makes the best candidates for leadership in their companies and others, and expressed the hope that other adherents of free enterprise would be impressed with the desirability of keeping the University of Rochester strong and its faculties free of public support and control.

"The University of Rochester in all of its phases has been of great assistance to The Pfaudler Company," Mr. Miner said. "Our research and technical staffs have used freely the scientific facilities of the University.
A number of our employees are taking classes at the University . . . I cannot emphasize too much how important the University's influence is in the entire life of the city. Those influences which make Rochester a good place to live are important in our company's welfare because most of our future employees will probably come from the city. Actually, many graduates of the University are now in our employ, several of them in key positions.

"In making this contribution of $45,000, we are desirous that it be added to the general endowment of the University and that it thereby will be useful in supporting the general educational program. We believe that a balanced educational program, including a strong College of Arts and Science, is of the greatest benefit."

Broadcast Plans Arranged
For All Home Grid Games

Negotiations are in progress for the broadcasting of all five home games of the Varsity football team, under the sponsorship of Brighton Place Sealtest Dairy and the McFar-lin Clothing Company. The home games are as follows: King's Point, September 27, Union, October 11,
Vermont, October 18, Hamilton,
November 8, and Allegheny, No-

Away games are Williams at Williamstown, Mass., October 4, Rensselaer at Troy, October 25, and Oberlin at Oberlin November 1.

Special events are planned for all home games to add interest for students, alumni, and other UR football fans.
ALL hail the Class of '42!

Men and women of the class which celebrated its tenth reunion a few weeks ago have contributed to a record birth rate for college graduates surveyed a decade after they received their diplomas.

The information comes from the Population Reference Bureau of Washington, D.C., which checked up on the fertility of some 16,000 college alumni and alumnae across the country.

Both the UR men and women of '42 were above the national college average, the men by only $\frac{1}{1600}$ of a child, but the women by $\frac{1}{1200}$.

The exact figures were: 1.52 children for each UR man of '42 who reported, against a national figure of 1.51, and 1.35 for each UR woman of '42 who reported, against a national figure of 1.23.

But although these figures represent the peak of a steady climb in college birth-rates-checked-10-years-after during the seven years the bureau has been making its surveys, both the guys and gals of '42 have a way to go before they can claim they are reproducing themselves. That's because the bureau estimates that 2.1 children per graduate are needed to replace these college-trained people in the next generation. But the bureau has high hopes: It doesn't judge families as "complete" until 25 years after graduation, which means that the Class of 1942 has another 15 years in which to do right by itself, the nation and posterity.

This brings us to a matter we'd rather not talk about, but which is part of the survey—and of the story. We're talking about the Class of 1927.

The UR women of '27 were ahead of the national average for their class, but the men lagged considerably behind—and neither group was up to par as far as replacing itself is concerned. The women of 1927 reported 1.23 children, against a national figure of 1.19, but the men reported only 1.62, against a national figure of 1.85. And, warns the bureau, these families are virtually complete.

The women of 1942 can really take a bow, by the way. They not only exceeded the national average, but only ten years after graduation, beat the mark of their sisters of 1927—reporting 1.35 children against 1.23 for 1927.

They stood fifty-second out of 131 colleges reporting, lagging far behind such colleges as St. Xavier, Ill., which led the rest with 2.12 children and St. Lawrence University, which took eighteenth place with 1.57 children, but were ahead of Alfred University, with 1.33, Russell Sage, with 1.30; Purdue, with 1.23, and Rochester Institute of Technology with .62.

The men of '42 were in fifty-eighth place out of 121 colleges reporting, losing out to Brigham Young University, which upheld the Mormon tradition of large families with 2.58 children, Kenyon which took thirty-first place with 1.69 and St. Lawrence, with 1.55. The men did lead Alfred, which reported 1.49 children for the Class of 1942, Purdue, with 1.48, Harvard, with 1.45 and R.I.T. with 1.05.

The men of '27, however, lost out not only to the leaders, Calvin, Mich., with 3.39 and Brigham Young, with 3.22, but also to Harvard, with 1.90, Alfred, with 1.71; and Lehigh with 1.70. St. Lawrence lagged a bit behind, with 1.59 children, taking seventy ninth place behind the UR's seventy-eighth.

For the Class of 1927's women, Brigham Young was in first place... with 2.29 children, Alfred was in twenty-third place with 1.50 and the UR in forty-sixth place with 1.23. Lagging still further were Purdue women, with 1.19, Russell Sage, with 1.18, and St. Lawrence with 1.02.

Faculty Men Promoted

Dr. S. D. Shirley Spragg, associate professor of psychology, has been promoted to full professor. Other promotions in the College include the following: From assistant professor to associate professor, Drs. John B. Christopher, in history, Harry Fulbright, physics, William H. Gilman, English, Elmer G. Suhr, classics, and Byron B. Williams, education; from instructor to assistant professor, Robert Blackburn, government, William B. Muchmore, biology, Jack Taylor, economics and business administration, Virgil Topazio, French.

Dr. D. Lincoln Canfield, former associate professor of Spanish at Rochester who went to Florida State College for Women as chairman of the department of modern languages, has been named visiting professor of Spanish at the College of Arts and Sciences for the 1952-53 academic year.

Medical School Advancements

Dr. William L. Bradford, assistant dean and professor of pediatrics, to become head of the department succeeding Dr. Samuel Clausen, who became professor emeritus on July 1 after serving on the faculty since the Medical School was opened in 1925.

Dr. R. Plato Schwartz, promoted from associate professor to professor of orthopedic surgery.

Dr. Robert M. McCormack, promoted to assistant professor of plastic surgery and head of the Division of Plastic Surgery, and Dr. Robert B. Sweet, promoted from assistant professor of anesthesiology and assistant professor of pharmacology.
Judge William Northrup Returns, Hailed by Fellow Californians

WHEN the residents of Alhambra, Calif., learned that Judge William M. Northrup planned to attend the University of Rochester alumni reunion on June 7 as a member of the Class of 1886, they hastened to advise the Alumni Office that in their opinion, the University has no more distinguished alumnus than the Judge.

A number of the city's leading citizens wrote to the Alumni Office telling of Judge Northrup's many years of devoted service to the people of Alhambra.

"There have been few organizations that have had to do with the welfare or advancement of Alhambra or its citizens that Judge Northrup has not been actively connected with," write Grace B. Parrish, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Alhambra Day Nursery and manager of the Parent-Teachers Association Thrift Shop. "We in Alhambra have come to think of Judge Northrup in relation to our community as all of us think of Abraham Lincoln in our nation."

Mrs. Irwin H. Pederson, of the Alhambra Council of Parents and Teachers, wrote:

"Judge Northrup has devoted many years of service to the people of Alhambra with no thought of remuneration or reward. He has given his time to movements for the community's betterment and has held official positions in the Chamber of Commerce and many other civic organizations. As president of the Board of Social Welfare his wise counsel and untiring efforts guided the board through the most critical economic crisis in the city's history. As a tribute to his civic work, one of Alhambra's new schools has been named the William Northrup School. He has been further honored by being presented the Community Service Award as an outstanding citizen."

Born in Rochester in 1866, Judge Northrup went to Chicago after graduating from the University of Rochester, and after practicing law there for a number of years, he moved to California in 1897. When he was unable to attend the 50th reunion of his class in 1936, he sent the following verse:

Too far to walk, no chance to ride—
But to you who have conquered time and tide
For 50 years, since we started out
To find out what life was all about:
With our greetings and our hope (this letter!)
That your next 50 years will be still better!

Since then the Judge has been busy exemplifying the wish expressed in the last line of his poem, which is why the city of Alhambra has designated him as its "First Citizen."

Dr. Robert Metzdorf Named Manuscript Curator at Yale

Dr. Robert F. Metzdorf, '33, who was a member of the UR Library staff from 1933 to 1949, has been appointed to the new position of curator of manuscripts at Sterling Memorial Library, Yale University. He also was named a research associate and secretary to the Yale editorial committee editing the papers of John Boswell.
After delaying as long as possible in the hope that such action could be avoided, the Administration and Trustees yielded to the inevitable in June by increasing the University’s tuition rates, effective this September.

The new rate will be $700 a year for all full-time students in the College of Arts and Science, Eastman School of Music, and the Graduate School. In the School of Medicine and Dentistry, the annual rate will be $800.

Tuition Hike Financial Necessity

Many other leading colleges and universities had announced substantial increases in student fees and tuition, some considerably higher than Rochester’s, during the past year or more. The Board of Trustees, after postponing a similar decision for a considerable time, came to the conclusion at its June meeting, that the University can no longer meet its academic responsibilities without raising its tuition rates. This became clear when the budgets for the academic year 1952-53 were presented to the Board.

The higher rate in the College of Arts and Science will be offset in part by the fact that the tuition will include laboratory and library fees which up to now have been an extra charge. The net tuition increase will amount to not more than about $75 per student per year, on the average.

An appropriate change will be made in the tuition per credit hour applicable to students in University School, beginning in September, 1952, and in the Summer Session beginning in 1953.

In letters to students and their parents, Charles F. Hutchinson, secretary of the Board, informed them of the higher rates and the necessity for them.

He pointed out that the amount a student pays in tuition equals only about 50 per cent of the cost of his education to the University, and that in effect the University is contributing more than $2,500 to each undergraduate student’s college education.

“Even with the additional income to be provided from increased tuition rates, the University anticipates a substantial operating deficit for the next academic year,” he said. Despite the higher rate, the UR student costs will be below those of comparable universities of high academic standards. This is possible, he explained, because of the exercise of every reasonable economy by the University, and wise use of its endowment funds.

Result of Inflation

“The University greatly regrets that it cannot postpone its decision any longer,” he wrote, “but you will readily understand that it cannot escape the consequences of higher costs in materials, equipment, and wages resulting from national inflation. . . . The cost of our product, which is a first-rate education, has risen much less than the general price level. Tuition increases at the University of Rochester since 1945 are only about 50 per cent of the rise in general living costs. . . . With an increase in our income, together with the gifts which the University hopes to receive, we will be enabled to maintain the distinction of our instruction and to continue to improve the intellectual and physical environment in which our students spend their years at college.”

Regional Chapters

BUFFALO

Dr. Ruth Merrill and Dr. Isabel K. Wallace were honored at a dinner meeting, May 23. Marion Woodside Kaley, ’39, was elected president for the coming year to succeed Janette Wilson Atkinson ’32.

CLEVELAND

New officers were elected and a constitution adopted at a meeting of the Cleveland Alumni-Alumnae Association at the Hawken School on May 18. Alfred Fletcher, ’00, was named honorary president; Robert Lewis, ’47, president; Thomas White, ’35, vice-president; Helen Converse Lewis, ’49, secretary; and Nancy Tobin Hornberger ’49, treasurer. Charles Stephens, ’12, and Dr. Jay C. Hornberger, ’49M, were named members of the Executive Committee in addition to the officers.

NEW YORK

On May 18 Mildred Grant Gariss, president of the board of directors of the New York Chapter, represented the University at the unveiling of the bust of Susan B. Anthony at the Hall of Fame, University Heights, New York University in New York City. Mrs. Gariss presented the floral tribute of the University of Rochester Alumni-Alumnae Association during the ceremonies.

PHILADELPHIA

New officers for the Philadelphia Alumni-Alumnae Association are: Ellenmae Viergiver, ’36 and ’41G, president; Dr. Edward Auer, ’40, vice-president; Frank Lines, ’32, vice-president for Wilmington area; Mrs. Kathleen Maddens Mairhuber, ’43, secretary; and Anthony Malgieri, ’46, treasurer.
Dr. W. Albert Noyes, Jr., Appointed Dean of Graduate School

Dr. Lewis W. Beck, Philosophy Head,
Named to New Post of Associate Dean

INTERNATIONALY known scientist with a deep interest in the humanities, Dr. W. Albert Noyes, Jr., Chemistry Department chairman, has been appointed dean of the Graduate School.

To the newly-created position of associate dean, the University has named Dr. Lewis W. Beck, able young chairman of the Philosophy Department.

Succeeds Dr. Smith

Dr. Noyes succeeds Dr. Frank P. Smith, professor of business administration, who served as dean of the Graduate School for six years until his resignation this Spring to become director of the Bureau of Business Research and professor of business administration at the University of Michigan. Dr. Noyes will continue as head of the Chemistry Department and Dr. Beck as Philosophy Department chairman.

President de Kiewiet termed the appointments distinguished ones, combining the humanities and the sciences, and University-wide in scope, since the Graduate School's program includes the College of Arts and Science, the Eastman School of Music, the School of Medicine and Dentistry, and University School.

Known In Many Fields

Not only is Dr. Noyes a scientist of national and international reputation, but he is also known for the breadth of his interest in the humanities and as a prominent participant in the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization, President de Kiewiet pointed out, Dr. Noyes has studied and traveled extensively in France and other countries (he received his doctorate in 1920 at the University of Paris), and has a wide knowledge of other cultures.

To the position of associate dean, Dr. Beck brings an impressive record as teacher, lecturer, and writer. He is the author of several books and numerous articles in the field of philosophy. His newest book, "Philosophic Inquiry: An Introduction to Philosophy," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc., New York City, has been hailed as a notable addition to college text books in philosophy.

650 Enroll Each Year

Enrollment in the Graduate School in recent years has averaged more than 650 students each year, graduates of more than 230 colleges in this country and in more than 20 foreign nations who are taking advanced studies at Rochester toward master's and Ph.D. degrees in many fields of the arts, music, and science.

Dr. Noyes, a graduate of Grinnell College, joined the Rochester faculty in 1938 after teaching at the Universities of Chicago and California, and Brown University. He was appointed Houghton Professor of Chemistry in 1940. Five years ago he received the highest honor in the field of chemistry when he was elected president of the American Chemical Society with a membership of over 40,000. Since 1950, he has been editor of the society's Journal, national offices of which are located in Lattimore Hall, River Campus, and also is editor of the Journal of Physical Chemistry. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and of the American Physical Society, and was a member of the Council of the National Academy of Sciences from 1948-50.

Received King's Medal

For his services to the United States and its Allies in World War II as a key figure in the chemical warfare program, he received the King's Medal of the British Empire in 1948, and the Medal of Merit from the President of the United States. He is senior scientific adviser to the Chief of the U.S. Chemical Corps, and also chairman of the Division of Chemistry and Chemical Technology, National Research Council, consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission, and a member of the Naval Research Advisory Committee.

Active in UNESCO

In the international field, he has been a leading member of UNESCO since its inception. He was the only American on the Committee of Natural Science in the UNESCO Preparatory Commission which met in London in November, 1946, and a few months later served as scientific adviser to the U.S. delegation at UNESCO's first session in Paris, on appointment by the U.S. State De-
History in the Making Around the World
By Glyndon G. Van Deusen

The academic year 1951-1952 contained a wealth of experiences for the Van Deusen family. We left Rochester for Dunedin, New Zealand, on May 9, 1951, as the result of my being granted a Fulbright lectureship in American history at the University of Otago. San Francisco was our first stopping off place, enroute to New Zealand. We left the Golden Gate at 2:30 P.M. on May 11, our BCPA plane heading for Honolulu and points south. At 6:15 P.M. the next day we landed at Auckland, New Zealand. Within a little over 24 hours we had gone from late spring to early winter, tossed the moon from our southern to our northern sky and traded the Big Dipper for the Southern Cross. It had been an unforgettable experience. The airplane has telescoped both time and space.

Our nine months in New Zealand were among the happiest in our lives. New Zealand is a beautiful country, and its people are warm and friendly. They quickly made us feel at home. Faculty, students and townspeople seemed to vie in making our stay pleasant. Of course they wanted to hear as much about life in the United States as possible, and both Ruth and I were in great demand as speakers on subjects that ranged from the problems of the American housewife to the foreign policy of the United States. The consequence was that we worked hard, but had a fine time doing it. Before we left New Zealand, we had made some close personal friends and had some reason to believe that New Zealanders had a better understanding of our own country than had been the case before our arrival. We shall probably never see those beautiful islands again, but we shall always think of them and of the people who live there with great affection.

We went to England from New Zealand by way of Australia, Java, Singapore and Ceylon, then on through the Indian Ocean and the Red Sea to Port Said and the Mediterranean. On this trip of some 10,000 miles we saw and heard something of the misery and problems of the Far East, where teeming millions of people struggling for existence look eagerly for relief, no matter from what quarter. What we saw in Djakarta on the island of Java gave us a better understanding of the need for social reconstruction in the Far East than anything we have read on the subject.

We bought a light car in London, took it over on the continent, and were thus able to do some 5,000 miles of touring in various European countries. We saw the awful destruction still all too obvious in the Dunkerque area, saw the reconstruction that is taking place in the Low Countries, and heard from the Dutch how bitter they still are over the wanton destruction practiced by the Germans, particularly toward the close of the Second World War. We saw at first hand, in the great industrial areas of the Lower Rhine, the remarkable industrial recovery that is taking place in western Germany. We stayed for a month at Schloss Leopoldskron in Salzburg, Austria, where I taught American history (as I had done in 1950) in the Salzburg Seminar for American Studies which is headed by Professor Dexter Perkins. There, as in 1950, we had an opportunity to see the earnest desire of all European students for peace, the eagerness (not unmixed with scepticism) with which they look to America for help, and also the difficulties that nationalism and traditional bitternesses and hatreds are placing every day in the way of the peaceful reconstruction of Europe.

By the middle of April we were again started on our travels. We went into Jugoslavia, where a week’s stay gave us a chance to meet representatives of this gallant, war-torn land, to see something of the eagerness with which they are attempting to rebuild their country, and something of the problems that inevitably arise from the practice of totalitarian dictatorship. Then we crossed over into Italy and in the midst of the lovely Italian spring drove from Venice across the Apennines, south to Rome and then north by way of Pisa and Genoa to the Riviera. We crossed that land of enchantment and then, by way of southern France, made our way into Spain. Traveling from Barcelona to Madrid, with a three day stop in that city, and then a trip by way of Burgos and San Sebastian to Biarritz, gave us a chance to see the beauty, the splendour and, in places, the appalling poverty of the Spanish people. We ended this continental tour with a few days in Paris, and a night in the Hotel de Crillon, and then a trip by train to the Riviera to see something of the eagerness with which they are attempting to rebuild their country, and something of the problems that inevitably arise from the practice of totalitarian dictatorship.

The year was a busy one, full of new experiences, replete with information that is not easily acquired from books. The experience had been rich and broadening. It was interesting to watch our children mature under its impact. This circumnavigation of the globe has left us with a conviction of the enormous importance of developing international contacts in this troubled 20th century world. It has particularly impressed upon us the value of the Fulbright awards and of the Salzburg Seminar as agencies in making American aims better understood abroad, and thus of bringing into being that era of peace and good will among the nations for which we all yearn.

Faculty Notes

Dr. R. Plato Schwartz, professor of orthopedic surgery at the Medical School, went to England in June to attend a meeting of the American Orthopedic Association in London. He gave a paper on the work of the Edith Hartwell Clinic for cerebral palsy children, one of the nation’s leading centers for treatment, research and training in neuro-muscular disabilities.

Another faculty member who will go abroad is Dr. W. Albert Noyes, Jr., new Dean of the Graduate School and Chemistry Department chairman, who will go to England for conferences in connection with his work for the armed forces and UNESCO. He also will visit France as representative of the International Union of Chemistry, of which he is a former vice-president.

Miss Catherine Brophy, assistant professor of nursing education and director of the health nursing program, is one of 14 health nurses in the United States to be awarded a United Nations World Health Organization fellowship for study abroad this summer. She will spend August and September in England.

1886

DEAN LEWIS ELLSWORTH AKELEY of the University of South Dakota, was recently paid high tribute by the South Dakota Educational Association’s Journal of Education. We quote in part: “An institution is the lengthened shadow of one man”. This statement by Ralph Waldo Emerson is applicable to Dean Lewis Ellsworth Akeley of the University of South Dakota, if ever it was applicable to anyone. ‘The Grand Old Man of the Campus’ of the University, now in his 90th year, is still active as a teacher after 64 years of such service. Truly it is an honor to pay our respects to him and to recognize all that he has done for young people at the University over the years and all that he means to graduates, present students, and everyone else. Dr. Akeley came to the university in 1887, before statehood, as professor of physics and chemistry. He was named dean of the college of engineering in 1908. He resigned the deanship in 1933 but has continued to teach ever since. In later years, and this year, this teaching has been a course in the Philosophy of Science... Dean and Mrs. Akeley have two children, Edward, who is an associate professor of physics at Purdue University and Mrs. Marion Miller, who teaches in a rural elementary school near Vermillion. Her eldest son, Akeley Miller, teaches in the University physics department... We know that all South Dakotans appreciate deeply Dean Akeley’s great and good work at the University. We believe that succeeding generations of students in all of the colleges of South Dakota should be cognizant of his career and of his continuing influence on American life in this area. All hail to Dean Akeley, who belongs to all of South Dakota’s past and to its present and all hail to its present and all hail to his students who have and are carrying on greatly because of him and his teachings”.

W.E. LOUCKS found it impossible to attend his class reunion though it would have brought him “much joy”. In writing about his work since graduation he said, “It has been my privilege to serve the following Baptist Churches.
as their minister—Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, Ohio . . . First Church, Toledo, Ohio . . . Fourth Church, Minneapolis, Minn . . . Albany Park, Chicago . . . First Church, Bellingham, Wash. . . . During my ministry with the Fourth Church, Minneapolis, I was permitted to see a new church building worth $100,000 erected and dedicated free of debt, and while I served the Albany Park Church . . . I had the privilege of teaching a class in pastoral theology, connected with the Northern Baptist Seminary, and a year or so afterwards was honored by that institution by the conferring upon me of the degree of D.D. . . . Mrs. Loucks and I have made our home in Denver . . . as to my children, Chester is still enjoying a most fruitful pastorate with the First Church, Ann Arbor, and has the additional responsibility of being counselor for the Baptist students of that University; Roger is head of the Psychology Department of the University of Washington; and Eleanor is the wife of Dean Beeman, who has charge of the Western Office of General Motors located at Portland, Oregon . . . Remember me most kindly to Akley and Lewis and to any other friends who may recall our days together at the old Alma Mater".

SHATTERED EQUILIBRIUM
No longer halcyon days—
Cerulean Summer merges into autuminal gray.
Fog casts its mantle
On shadowy willows.
Ontario is freighted with silence.
Equilibrium is thus balanced,
As though waiting for some touch
To wrinkle this calm surface.
No eager North Wind accepts the challenge,
Breaks this spell of haze.
Angry water wreaks its vengeance
On passive stone.
Once more, age-long conflict
Seeks decision.
